PREFACE.

It is a remark of Macaulay, that "in fiction, the principles are given to find the facts; in history, the facts are given to find the principles; and the writer who does not explain the phenomena, as well as state them, performs only one half of his duty." In accordance with this sentiment, the following work is designed to serve as a book of reference, of facts and explanations, in respect to matters, useful and interesting, which may exist or transpire within the limits of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The work proposes to be what its title implies, a Record Book of the State; and while its chief object will be to furnish information in regard to Massachusetts particularly, it will also embrace such general information in reference to other states and countries as may be calculated to advance the best interests, and to subserve the convenience, of the citizens of our Commonwealth.

The work will be devoted to business, science, and history; and whatever changes have taken place in Massachusetts, from her earliest period to the present, or may take place in the future, will, so long as we continue Editor, be matters of record and practical comment. In commencing a work more than two hundred years after the first settlement of the State, we shall endeavor so to reproduce the past in connection with the present, as to furnish the history, progress, and actual condition of the Commonwealth.

As the events of history are classified according to some rule, in view of their practical importance, so may masses of men be so classified, according to their vocation or honorary distinction, as to render important aid to the legislator or citizen, and act as a guide to the future historian in his researches.

The names of men in business and in office will, in our design, serve as objects of reference and as elements of history. The history of men, of all classes, and the history of institutions of every description, teach the true philosophy of life. If men and institutions succeed, the causes of their prosperity will be developed; if they fail, the sources of their adverse fortune will appear.

It has been the custom of the world to publish only the lives of great men; but, without desiring to undervalue the influence of such productions, which all must allow, we believe that a system of Biography, embracing men who make up the mass of society, and giving the results of their lives in classes, would prove quite as interesting, and, to say the least, quite as useful. It would be a systematic history of man as connected with the objects and pursuits of life, and would afford a view of the frame-work of society which all could understand. As it is an axiom of physics, that no atom of matter can be spared from the universe; so it is an axiom in moral science, that no human being is called into existence to whom is not assigned a particular sphere of action. By resolving all society into classes, and by noting the events of each class, every citizen would have his general biography, and every age its particular history.

It will be the aim of the "MASSACHUSETTS STATE RECORD"—1. To give annually the names of the State, County, and Town Officers, and, in connection therewith, to note the objects and results of our State Legislation. 2. To develope the principles of the Institutions of the Commonwealth, by giving their objects and results. 3. To set forth the kind and extent of business pursued by the inhabitants, including the learned professions. 4. To represent the social, moral, and physical condition of the people, as connected with their pursuits and recreations. 5. To exhibit the mutual relations of society, and to embody the results of the combined action of all in relation to external objects, with a view to the high destiny of man.

We are aware that the prosecution of such a work requires scrupulous accuracy, much study, and great labor; and that in its faithful execution we shall need the aid of many to render it worthy of that acceptance which sanctions its object and appreciates its principles.

To enable us to prepare the present volume, we addressed circulars of inquiry to correspondents in every town in the Commonwealth. We received complete or partial returns from nearly 300 towns. We tender our best thanks to correspondents for their contributions and good wishes. With their aid we hope to succeed in rendering the continuation of the work an object of public importance. Some of the returns were executed with systematic care, and are highly creditable to their authors. We have received a large amount of information, which the size of our work necessarily precludes, but which we hold for future use. We beg to suggest to our correspondents, that, by writing proper names in such a manner that their orthography cannot be mistaken, they would confer on the work an important service. We are prepared to hear that there are errors in the present volume, though we have done our best to avoid them.

With respect to lists of Justices of the Peace, and of other officers appointed by the State, we are satisfied that there must be many errors; for the State Records give information only of appointments, and afford none with regard to removals or deaths, and but little in reference to those who have received commissions, but have not been qualified to act. On the other hand, we were fearful, if we followed the returns of our correspondents, that omissions might be the result. We trust, however, that the mode which we have decided to adopt in future will enable us to verify with entire accuracy every portion of the work. To this end we pledge our best though humble efforts, and shall be grateful to others for aid and counsel.

We would acknowledge our obligations to J. B. Felt, Esq., who furnished lists of past officers of the State, and other valuable matter; to Hon. J. G. Palfrey, for State Documents; and to the Rev. Joseph S. Clark, the Hon. S. H. Jenks, and J. Wingate Thornton, Esq., for the interest which they have manifested in relation to the work, and for the aid which they have afforded us in its execution.

The work will, in future, be published at the commencement of each year. All communications should be forwarded to the Editor, care of the publisher, on or before the first of October.

FEBRUARY 22, 1847.

CORRECTION.

On page 242, "Massachusetts State Record," last line, for "Males employed," 30,340 (in the Factories of Lowell), read, MALES EMPLOYED, 3,340.

EXPLANATION OF CHRONOLOGICAL CYCLES.*

I. Dominical Letter.—The seven days of the week, reckoned as beginning on the first of January, are designated by the first seven letters of the alphabet, A, B, C, D, E, F, G; and the one of these which denotes Sunday is the Dominical letter. Thus, if the year begin on Sunday, A is the dominical letter; if it begin on Monday, that letter is G; if on Tuesday, it is F; and so on. If there were 364 days, or exactly 52 weeks in the year, the Dominical letter would be always the same; but the year contains 365¼ days; an excess of 1¼ day over the 52 weeks. The day is taken into the account every year, and the one-fourth makes a day in every four years; so that the dominical letter falls backward one letter for each of the three years in which the date or number of the year cannot be divided by 4, without remainder, and two letters every fourth year, when the date can be so divided. The years which have 29 days in February, and the two dominical letters are called Bissextiles, or leap years, because the day of the month, after February, leaps over a day of the week.

II. The Golden Number.—At the end of every nineteen years, the new and full moons happen at very nearly the same times of the year. The ancients discovered this, and reckoned the nineteen years, or "Cycle of the Moon," as it is called, so that it terminated the year before the Christian era. This Cycle was marked by the Greeks with letters of Gold. To find the golden number, or number of the year in this Cycle, add 1 to the date; divide by 19: the quotient is the number of Cycles of the Moon since the birth of Christ, and the remainder is the golden number.

III. Solar Cycle.—The Cycle of the Sun is the number of years that elapse before the Sundays throughout the year happen on the same days of the month. If there were 364 days in the year, that would happen every year; if 365, it would happen every seventh year; but because the one-fourth of a day makes an alteration of a day every fourth year, the Cycle must extend to 28 years. Nine years of this Cycle had elapsed before the birth of Christ. Therefore, to find the cycle of the Sun, add 9 to the date; divide by 28; the quotient is the number of cycles since the birth of Christ, and the remainder is the Cycle of the Sun.

IV. THE EPACT is the Moon's age for the first day of January, or the equation between the beginning of the Solar and the Lunar year.

* Abridged from the Companion to British Almanac.

The time from one new moon to another is about 29½ days. Thus there are, in a year, twelve revolutions of the moon and 11 days over; therefore the 12th new moon will take place 11 days earlier each year than it did the year before. In the lunar cycle of 19 years, there are 12 new moons in each of 12, and 13 in each of 7; because the 11 days of yearly difference in three years exceed a lunar month by 3½ days. The following method will answer for the day of the moon's age on the 1st of January till the end of the present century: Take 1 from the golden number, multiply what is left by 11, divide by 30; the remainder is the epact, or moon's age on the first of January.

V. Roman Indiction. — The cycle of indiction has no connection with the motions of the Sun and Moon further than its consisting of 15 years. It was established by the Emperor Constantine, in the year 312, to regulate certain payments by the subjects of the empire. To find it, for any year, subtract 312 from the date, divide by 15, and the remainder is the indiction.

ON THE CALENDAR, AND ITS SUCCESSIVE REFORMS.

The divisions of time, such as they are presented in the Calendar, are composed of days, weeks, months, and years. The modes of determining these divisions have been various amongst the nations of antiquity, and there are still variations in these modes in the modern world.

The manner of reckoning the DAYS by the ancient Jews, and which subsists amongst that people at the present time, is, to commence the day at a certain hour of the evening, and to finish it on the next evening at the same hour. Thus their sabbath begins on the afternoon of Friday, and is completed on the afternoon of Saturday. The Roman Catholic Church also commences its festivals in the evening, and this custom is retained by the Episcopalians in some of their popular observances, such as the eve of St. John, and Christmas eve.

The civil day now commences at 12 o'clock, midnight, and lasts till the same hour of the following night. The civil day is distinguished from the astronomical day, which begins at noon, and is counted up to 24 hours, terminating at the succeeding noon. This mode of reckoning the day is that used in the Nautical Almanac, and it sometimes leads to mistakes with persons not familiar with this manner of computation. A little consideration will obviate the difficulty. Thus, January 10, fifteen hours in astronomical time, is January 11; 3 in the morning, civil time. In France and in most of the States of Europe, as with us, the hours are counted up to 12, from midnight till noon, and from noon till midnight. In parts of Italy and of Germany, the day is held to commence about sunset, and the hours are counted on till the next sunset. This mode is very inconvenient to travellers, as the noon of the 'Italian hours' at the summer Solstice is 16 o'clock, and 19 o'clock at the winter Solstice.

The English names of the days of the WEEK are derived from the Saxons; and they partly adopted these names from the more civilized nations of antiquity. The following ingenious origin of the ancient names has been suggested in connection with astronomical science. The planetary arrangement of Ptolemy was thus; 1, Saturn; 2, Jupiter; 3, Mars; 4, the Sun; 5, Venus; 6, Mercury; 7, the Moon; each of these planets was supposed to preside, successively, over each hour of the 24 of each day, in the order above given. In this way Saturn would preside over the first hour of the first day; Jupiter over the second hour; Mars over the third; the Sun over the fourth, and so on. Thus the Sun, presiding over the 4th, 11th, and 18th hours of the first day, would preside over the first hour of the second day; and carrying on the series, the Moon would preside over the first hour of the third day; Mars over the first hour of the fourth day; Mercury over the first hour of the fifth day; Jupiter over the first hour of the sixth day; and Venus over the first hour of the seventh day. Hence, the names of the days yet used in the learned professions throughout Europe. The present English names are derived from the Saxon:

Latin.	English.	Saxon.
Dies Saturni,	Saturday,	Seterne's day.
Dies Solis,	Sunday,	Sun's day.
Dies Lunæ,	Monday,	Moon's day.
Dies Martis,	Tuesday,	Tiw's day.
Dies Mercurii,	Wednesday,	Woden's day.
Dies Jovis,	Thursday,	Thor's day.
Dies Veneris,	Friday,	Friga's day.

Tiw, Woden, Thor, and Friga, were deities of the Pagan Saxons. Thor was the god of thunder, as well as the ancient Jove; and Friga was a goddess, the wife of Woden.

Almost all nations have regulated their MONTHS, in great degree, by the revolution of the Moon. Some have endeavored to unite this division with the annual course of the Sun, by an augmentation of days at the end of each year, or by adding a thirteenth month at the end of every third year. The Jews and the Athenians followed this latter method. The Macedonians, and some nations of Asia, assigned their months 30 and 31 days. The Turks and the Arabs have 29 and 30 days. The months of the Anglo-Saxons were governed by the revolutions of the Moon. Their common year consisted of twelve lunar months, three months being appropriated to each of the four seasons; but every third year contained an additional lunar month, which was given to the summer season. The names of their lunar months either had reference to their religious ceremonies, or to the natural appearances of the year.

A considerable variation prevailed generally amongst the nations of antiquity, and still partially prevails, with regard to the commencement of the YEAR. The Jews dated the beginning of the sacred year in the month of March; the Athenians, in the month of June; the Macedonians, on the 24th of September; the Christians of Egypt and Ethiopia, on the 29th or 30th of August; and the Persians and Armenians, on the 11th of August. The Jewish civil year begins on the first day of the month Tisri; the Mahommedan begins on the first of the month Moharem. Nearly all the nations of the Christian world now commence the year on the 1st of January; but as recently as 1752, even in England, the year did not legally and generally commence till the 25th of March. In Scotland, at that period, the year began on the 1st of January. This difference caused great practical inconveniences, and January and February, and part of March, sometimes bore two dates, as we often find in old records, as 1711—12. This practice often leads to chronological mistakes.

The year, properly so called, is the solar year, or the period of time in which the Sun passes through the twelve signs of the Zodiac. This period comprises 365 days, 5 hours, 48 minutes, 51 seconds, 6 decimals, and is called the astronomical year.

The Calendar is a table of the days of the year, arranged to assist the distribution of time, and to indicate remarkable days connected with devotion or business. If every nation had adopted the same divisions of time, and a uniform Calendar had been general throughout civilized states, history would present much fewer difficulties and contradictions. The progress of astronomical science has necessarily produced great changes in the manner of dividing time; and thus, whilst some nations have been ready to give their Calendar every possible advantage of a scientific construction, the prejudices of others have rendered them unwilling to depart from their accustomed mode, however inaccurate. It may be curious and instructive to trace, very briefly, the changes of the Calendar, ordinarily called the changes of style.

The Romans called the first days of each month Calends, from a word which signified called; because the pontiffs on those days called the people together, to apprize them of the days of festival in that month. Hence we derive the name of CALENDAR.

The Roman Calendar, which has in great part been adopted by almost all nations, is stated to have been introduced by Romulus, the founder of the city. He divided the year into ten months only; Mars, Aprilis, Maius, Junius, Quintilis, (afterwards called Julius,) Sextilis, (afterwards called Augustus,) September, October, November, December. Mars, Maius, Quintilis, and October, contained 31 days each, and each of the six other months, 30 days; so that the ten months comprised 304 days. The year of Romulus was, therefore, of 50 days' less duration than the lunar year; and of 61 days' less than the solar year; and its commencement of course did not correspond with any fixed season. Numa Pompilius corrected this Calendar, by adding two months—Januarius and Februarius—which he placed before Mars. Julius Cæsar, being desirous to render the Calendar still more correct, consulted the astronomers of his time, who fixed the solar year as 365 days, 6 hours, comprising, as they thought, the period from one vernal equinox to another. The six hours were set aside, and at the end of four years, forming a day, the fourth year was made to consist of 366 days. The day thus added was called intercalary, and was added to the month of February, by doubling the 24th of that month, or, according to their way of reckoning, the sixth of the Calends of March. Hence the year was called Bissextile. This almost perfect arrangement, which was denominated the Julian style, prevailed generally through the Christian world till the time of Pope Gregory XIII. The Calendar of Julius Cæsar was defective in this particular : that the solar year, consisting of 365 days, 5 hours, and 49 minutes, and not of 365 days, 6 hours, as was supposed in the time of Julius Cæsar, there was a difference between the apparent year and the real year, of eleven minutes. This difference, at the time of Gregory XIII., had amounted to ten entire days, the vernal equinox falling on the 11th instead of the 21st of March, at which period it fell correctly at the time of the Council of Nice, in the year 325. To obviate this inconvenience, Gregory ordained, in 1582, that the 15th of October should be counted instead of the 5th, for the future ; and, to prevent the recurrence of this error, it was further determined that the year beginning a century should not be bissextile, with the exception of that beginning each fourth century. Thus, 1700 and 1800 have not been bissextile, nor will 1900 be so ; but the year 2000 will be bissextile. In this manner three days are retrenched in four hundred years, because the lapse of eleven minutes makes three days in about that period. The year of the Calendar is thus made to correspond, as nearly as possible, to the true solar year ; and future errors of chronology are avoided.

The adoption of this change, which is called the Gregorian, or New Style, (the Julian being called the Old Style,) was for some time resisted by states not under the authority of the See of Rome. The change of the style in England was established by an Act of Parliament, passed in 1752. It was then enacted that the year should commence on the 1st of January, instead of March 25th ; and that in the year 1752, the days should be numbered as usual until September 2, when the day following should be accounted the 14th September, omitting eleven days. The Gregorian principle of dropping one day in every hundredth year, except the fourth hundredth, was also enacted. The alteration was for a long time opposed by the prejudices of individuals ; and even now, in England, with some persons, the Old Style is so pertinaciously adhered to, that rents are made payable on the old quarter-days instead of the new. The Russians still retain the Old Style, thus creating an inconvenience in their public and commercial intercourse with other nations, which we trust that the growing intelligence of the people will eventually correct.

During the period in which France was a Republic, the authorities introduced an entire change in the Calendar, which was in existence more than twelve years, and is important to be noticed, as all the public Acts of the French nation were dated according to this altered style. The National Convention, by a decree of October 5th, 1793, established a new era, which was called, in the place of the Christian era, the era of the French. The commencement of each year, on the first "Vendimiaire," was fixed at the midnight commencing the day on which the autumnal equinox fell, as determined at the Observatory of Paris. This era commenced the 22nd September, 1792, being the epoch of the foundation of the Republic ; but its establishment was not decreed till the 4th "Frimaire" of the year II. (24th November, 1793.) Two days afterwards, the public acts were thus dated. This Calendar existed till the 10th "Nivose," year XIV. (the 31st December, 1805,) when the Gregorian mode of computation was restored.

THE WEATHER.

The subject of the WEATHER has become a universal topic of conversation. It seems to be the hinge upon which compliments of the season are turned, and upon which all subjects of the day are introduced and disposed of. It is introductory even to the subjects of love, politics, and religion. It is made the prelude to business, and the interlude to its various transactions. It aids the seller to divide the attention of the purchaser between the subject and the goods, so that he may not be supposed to think only of making a good bargain; and the buyer, to manifest an apparent indifference to whatever interest he is resolved to secure. It may be introduced at any time, on any occasion, without abruptness; and though it may not lead to thought, it often supplies the want of it. It furnishes the best exordium and peroration to a doubtful proposition addressed to a doubtful man, and though twenty times repeated, it rather gains than loses any of its importance. It gives birth to prophets, and great opportunity to persons to prophecy who are not prophets by profession. It developes the innate modesty both of men and women, who are averse to giving grave advice as to the coming shower or sunshine. And though it may sometimes lead to disappointment by error, it as often leads to the exercise of gratitude by being guessed right, to say the least, one half of the time, according to the doctrine of chances. Like every other subject, it is abused in the hands of the impostor; and yet, unlike all other subjects, it continues its impositions with perfect impunity.

It is not our purpose, however, to encourage a fashion so excessive; or to tolerate pretences which really have no foundation in science. We introduce the following table, by way of suggesting some system of observation, so that each one may observe and verify for himself, whether the indications of the outer world may be so classified as to subserve the interests of man. The first table is from a foreign journal, and it certainly may be commended for its method, if not for its accuracy. A Register kept in this form would soon enable any one to adopt satisfactory opinions in regard to the influence of the moon upon the weather.

INFLUENCE OF THE MOON ON THE WEATHER.

[Substance of a paper read to the Natural History Society of Geneva, by F. MARCET. Silliman's Jour. Vol. xxvii.]

On the question whether the moon has any influence over the weather there are two opposite opinions. The great mass of the people, including sailors, boatmen, and most practical farmers, entertain no doubt whatever of the influence of the moon. Whether the change of weather at the lunar phases will be from fair to foul, or from foul to fair, none of them pretend to decide beforehand, but most of them think, that at the new and full moon, there is generally a change of some kind. On the other hand, philosophers, astronomers, and the learned in general, attribute this opinion altogether to popular prejudice. Finding no reason, in the nature of atmospheric tides, for believing that changes should take place on one day of the lunation rather than another, they consider the popular opinion to be unsupported by any extended series of correct observations.

In the Annuaire, for 1833, Arago, the learned editor, has presented the result of the observations of Schubler, in Germany, during twenty-eight years, or 348 synodic revolutions of the moon. During the period of 348 new moons, etc. the number of rainy days were as follows:

It rained on the day of the New Moon, ... 148 times.
" " First Quarter, ... 156 "
" " Full Moon, ... 162 "
" " Last Quarter, ... 130 "

The observations of Schubler were made, during eight years, at Munich, four years at Stuttgard, and sixteen years at Augsburg.

As a good meteorological register has been long kept at Geneva, the author thought it would be interesting to ascertain from the tables, (which have been carefully published in the Bibliothèque of that city,) whether, during a period of 34 years, viz. from 1800 to 1833, any inferences could be drawn for or against the popular opinion on the subject of lunar influence.

He finds, during these 34 years, the number of rainy days and the quantity of water fallen to be as follows:

	Rainy days.	Water fallen.
At the New Moon,	123	432 lines.
" First Quarter,	122	429.6 "
" Full Moon,	132	415.7 "
" Last Quarter,	128	368.6 "

Throughout the whole period, 3,657 ..... 968 inches, 9.3 lines.

Thus it appears, that during 34 years, or 12,419 days, comprehending 420 synodic revolutions of the moon, there have been 3,657 rainy days. This gives, for every 100 days, 29.45 rainy days; and we find, that

For every 100 days of	New Moon,	29.29	have been	rainy.
" "	First Quarter,	29.05	"	"
" "	Full Moon,	31.43	"	"
" "	Last Quarter,	30.48	"	"

Hence, it is evident, that during these 34 years, at Geneva, the days of new moon and the days of the first quarter have been just about as liable to be rainy days as any other common days of the month, while the days of full moon and those of the last quarter have been rather more liable.

But although the days of full moon have been rather more frequently wet days than those of new moon, it does not follow that more water has fallen at full moon than at the change. The result of observation in that respect is as follows:

For every 100 days of	New Moon,	there fell	102 9	lines.
" "	First Quarter,	"	102.3	"
" "	Full Moon,	"	90.0	"
" "	Last Quarter,	"	87.9	"

The average quantity for every 100 days is 93.6 lines, whence it appears, that at the new moon, the first quarter, and the full moon, more water has fallen than on common days; at the last quarter, less. The quantity fallen on the total of the lunar phases, surpasses that on other days in the proportion of 98 to 93.6.

Another question is, whether a change of weather is more liable to happen on the four principal days of the lunar phases than on common days. But it must be decided what is meant by the term change of weather. This term should, the author thinks, be limited to a change from clear weather to rain, or from rain to clear weather, and not be understood to include, as some meteorologists make it, all changes, such as that from calm to windy, or from clear to cloudy, etc. As the author accepts it, the weather must have been steady during two days at least; that is, that the weather has been clear, or that it has rained more or less during two consecutive days. For example: a week has passed without rain; it rains on the eighth day, and on the ninth the weather is again fine. In this case, according to the author's definition, there is no change of weather. This may be arbitrary, but at least it is not vague, and if practised it will prevent, in the balancing of calculations, any leaning to a favorite hypothesis. To avoid another error, into which some have fallen, the author marks no change as occurring on lunar phases but those which take place on the very day, and never those which may happen on the evening before, or on the next day.

With these precautions he finds that during the 34 years, or 12,419 days, there have been 1,458 changes of weather. Of this number, 105 have taken place at the epoch of the two principal lunar phases, namely, 54 at the new moon, and 51 at the full moon. Now the whole number of principal phases during the 34 years is 840, therefore,

As 12419 : 840 :: 1458 : 98.6, the number of changes which would have taken place at new and full moon, had these lunar phases had no more than the share of common days, but instead of which the number was 105.

Of the 54 changes at new moon, 32 were from rain to fine weather, and 22 from fine weather to rain. Of the 51 at full moon 31 were from rain to clear, and 20 from clear to rain. Thus at the new and full moon the changes to fine weather are to those to rain as 63 to 42.

Having thus proved that the epoch of new and full moon are not absolutely without some effect on the weather, the author examined whether this effect was confined to those very days, or extended to the day following. On the days following the new and full moon, there were 129 changes, instead of 98.6, which would have been the number had these shared the proportion only of common days.

With respect to the days of the first and last quarter, the changes on these were 96, which bring them nearly to the condition of common days.

It is thus shown from the tables, that the chance of a change of new and full moon, compared with the chance on ordinary days, is as 125 to 117, and that the chance on the day following these two phases, compared with the common days, is as 154 to 117.

Upon the whole, therefore, this examination lends some support to the vulgar opinion of the influence of new and full moon, but none whatever to any especial influence of the first and third quarters.

With respect to barometrical pressure, it is ascertained that out of the 1458 changes of weather there were in 1073 cases a corresponding rise or fall of the barometer, according as the change was from rain to fair, or the contrary. This is nearly as 3 to 4. Of the 385 false indications of the barometer, 182 were on a change from rain to clear, and 203 on a change from clear to rain. Finally, of the 385 anomalies of the barometer, 17 were at full moon, and 10 only at new moon. — Bib. Univ. Fev. 1834.

STATE OF MASSACHUSETTS.

The State of Massachusetts is bounded east and south-east by the Atlantic Ocean, having a sea-coast of about 250 miles, exclusive of Dukes and Nantucket counties; south by Rhode Island, about 68 miles; south by Connecticut, 87 miles; west by New York, 50 miles; north by Vermont, 42 miles; and north by New Hampshire, about 87 miles — having an entire outline of about 540 miles. It contains an area of about 8,000 square miles, or 4,800,000 acres. The number of acres returned, in 1840, was 4,502,843 43-48, but this was doubtless below the actual quantity. It lies between 41° 31′, and 42° 53′ north latitude, and 69° 48′, and 73° 17′ west longitude from Greenwich. The population of the State will be found in the tables.

"The name of this State probably arose from the name of a tribe of Indians formerly at Barnstable; or from two Indian words, Mos and Wetuset; the former signifying an Indian arrow's head; the latter, hill. It is stated that the sachem who governed in this region about the time of the landing of our forefathers, lived on a hill in the form of an Indian arrow's head, a few miles south of Boston, and was called by the Indians, Moswetuset." *

For the following statistics with respect to our Commonwealth, we are indebted to Joseph B. Felt, Esq., well known for his indefatigable industry and scrupulous accuracy.

The English title to our own and other States was predicated on the discovery of their coast, in 1497, by John Cabot. The next principal claim to our soil was founded on a grant, in 1603, from the French monarch to Sieur de Monts, extending from 40° to 46°. For a right to the more northward parts, the same sovereign depended on the discovery of them in 1534, and the temporary occupation of Canada, 1535, by James Cartier. De Monts made a voyage to America, 1604, as a further confirmation of his title. As well known, these conflicting claims resulted in collisions and wars between the subjects of the two crowns. While Henry IV. was determined to retain what he could of the New World, his cotemporary, James I., was alike resolved. The latter, in 1606, conveyed to the Company of Plymouth and other sections of his kingdom, North Virginia from 38° to 45°. He renewed this privilege, in 1620, with some alteration, from 40° to 48°. In the meanwhile, settlements were made, by emigrants from both of the rival nations, north-eastwardly, and consequent hostilities had been committed. As connected with the territory in the last-mentioned conveyance of His Britannic majesty, Massachusetts, however previously visited by adventurous navigators and merchants, was not permanently settled, till several years afterwards. Previous to this colony's being granted, several divisions of it were appropriated to different individuals. Capt. John Mason, in 1621, was allowed a tract from Naumkeag river, round Cape Ann, to Merrimack river, and up each of these streams to their furthest heads. The instrument by which he held it, was not then legally sanctioned. Still it became the source of perplexity and expense to our government, and many of our population. Thomas Weston, a London merchant, having obtained a grant of Weymouth, sent emigrants thither in 1622. After severe sufferings, the settlers removed, 1625, and thus his project failed with great loss. Capt. Robert Gorges came over, 1623, with a commission as Governor of all New England. Mr. Bradford, chief magistrate of Plymouth Colony, was appointed one of his advisers. Towards the close of the same year, the Council, at home, conferred on Capt. Gorges a tract of land. This reached five miles up Charles river north-west from Boston Bay, and three miles up Abousett river, from their entrances, with all the soil between these two boundaries. A subsequent description of the same by his heirs, represents it as "lying from the east side of Charles river to the eastward part of the Cape, called Nahannte, and all the lands lying in length twenty miles N. E. into the main land from the mouth of Charles river, being also in length twenty miles into the main land N. E. from the said Cape Nahannte."

Finding that distance had lent far more enchantment to his high station than actual contact with its perils and trials possibly could, he vacated his office the next year, and forsook the country. The grant made to him was claimed by his heirs from the Massachusetts Company, but they declined to relinquish it or pay for it, because regularly assigned to them after he had forsaken it and the service, for which he was appointed.

In 1625, Capt. Wollaston brought over emigrants, and settled them in the part of Braintree now called Quincy. We have no mention of his having procured a charter of the place from the New England Council. But the circumstances of his voyage hither plainly denote, that he had such a permission for his undertaking. The plantation, thus begun, like Weymouth, its neighbor, soon went down.

The Plymouth Colony, having received a grant of Cape Ann, for agriculture, trade, and fishery, allowed it to be occupied, 1624, by emigrants, sent over by merchants in the west of England, as well as by their own people. This enterprise failed in 1626, when several, engaged in it, moved to Salem, and there commenced a permanent settlement. With a view to continue this plantation, Sir Henry Roswell and others obtained, in 1628, a patent for our Colony from the Crown, which was re-confirmed the following year. To rebut an assertion of the Council for New England, in 1635, and repeated in the reign of Charles II., that such a document was surreptitiously gotten, Chalmers furnishes us with the following entry, concerning it, from the colonial papers, deposited in the Privy Seal Office at Whitehall. "His Majesty's pleasure, signified by Sir Ralph Freeman, upon direction of the Lord Keeper of the Great Seal, subscribed by Mr. Attorney-General, procured by the Lord Viscount Dorchester, February, 1628. Their Charter passed 4th March following." The territory so assigned, had the ensuing boundaries:—Three miles south of any or every part of Charles river; three miles south of the southernmost limit of Massachusetts Bay; three miles north of any or every part of Merrimack river, and within all the breadth between these lines, from the Atlantic Ocean on the east, to the Pacific Ocean on the west. Here is ample authority for all which Massachusetts ever claimed through their first charter. For their jurisdiction over other territory, which they exercised at different periods, they had valid reasons. As an indication of our colonial authorities' being aware that the French had withdrawn neither their demands nor designs from our territory, we have the ensuing fact. The Court of Assistants ordered, in 1633, that Agawam be inhabited by our people, lest the premises should be occupied by emigrants from that nation. While our fathers were vigilant and active to prevent incursions on their limits, they perceived with alarm and sorrow, that there was a powerful combination against them in the mother country. They were too credibly informed, that the Council for New England were ready to co-operate for the destruction of all their rights and privileges. Soon after, this body surrendered their patent, on condition that they divided the soil among their own members, into twelve provinces, and had them all under the administration of one general Governor. Our Legislature, according to advice of the clergy, resolved to oppose such a design to the extent of their power. They were assured, in 1635, that the Council had carried their purpose into effect so far as to dissolve; to partition out the territory; to limit our colony from the North river in Salem, round Cape Cod to Narragansett, and appoint Sir Ferdinando Gorges for the general Governor. The Corporation, thus discontinued, gave various reasons for their conduct. They stated, that the charter of Massachusetts secured to the proprietors 3,000 miles from east to west without regard to previous grants, and conferred so great privileges on the inhabitants, that they "had made themselves a free people." One result of so extraordinary an event was the immediate prosecution of persons who belonged to the Company, and who resided in England. Judgment was given against them, and our charter declared void. The Royal Council ordered our General Court, in 1638, to deliver up this document, and forward it to them with all possible despatch. But as such compliance would be parting with what to them was dearer than life, they sent a petition to the Commissioners for Plantations, in which they vindicated their course and besought relief. Before they could be forcibly reached across the Atlantic, civil commotions had so increased in England as to endanger the regal authority, and interpose between them and the intended severity of retribution. Though signally protected on this trying emergency, similar experience awaited our legislative authorities on the restoration of the throne. Hearing that the commissioners of Charles II. were coming over in consequence of complaints against their government, the General Court, in 1664, had their patent taken from the Secretary's office and placed in the hands of a committee, "to dispose thereof as may be most safe for the country." A like precaution was exercised, in 1679, under similar apprehensions. But the storm which had been long gathering, burst on our devoted colony. Its charter was decreed as nullified in 1684. Its soil and every other gift of the Crown were declared forfeited. In 1686, it came under the Usurpation, and so continued till 1689. This was a reign of terror to the fast friends of New England. Sir Edmund Andros carried out the prerogative policy of the Crown with a high hand. He acted extensively on the assumption, that even the individual holders of the soil must be at the charge of new deeds, before he would permit them to retain and use such property. But the day of relief came, and the arm of the oppressor was broken. From 1689 to the arrival of the second charter in 1692, Massachusetts enjoyed their primitive privileges. The last instrument, though rendering them more dependent on the throne, confirmed their ancient boundaries so far as they did not interfere with "previous possessions and rights." It also extended their jurisdiction over Maine, Nova Scotia, and Plymouth Colony, with "the north half of the Isles of Shoals, together with the Isles of Capawock and Nantuckett." In 1697, Nova Scotia was ceded to the French by the treaty of Ryswick. It was retaken 1710, and made a British Province. The Sagadahock country, from Kennebeck river to St. Croix river, which had been considered as part of Nova Scotia, was retained under the authority of Massachusetts. Since this period, the limits of our Commonwealth have been variously altered, as will be noticed in our next volume.

MASSACHUSETTS COUNTIES.

Before Massachusetts was nominally divided into Counties, in 1643, it appears to have had such divisions, designated by the term Regiments. Under the date of Oct. 7, 1641, in General Court Records, is the following passage. "The proposition of choosing deputies for a yeare, and transacting and preparing all things for the General Court amongst the three Regiments, is to be carryed by the deputies to the freemen of every towne and their answer returned to the next session of this Court." Winthrop's Journal of May 6, 1639, says, "two Regiments in the Bay mustered at Boston." Evidently the phrase, "in the Bay," then excluded soldiers who belonged to what was afterwards called Essex County. Hence Regiments, at these dates, denoted an equal number of general and territorial divisions in the colony.

It is our design to give the dates at which the Counties were incorporated, their boundaries, &c., and in the next volume to commence an account of the Towns in the Commonwealth. There are now 14 Counties.

SUFFOLK COUNTY.

"Suffolk County was incorporated May 10th, 1643, and then included Norfolk County as well as Suffolk. It now contains only the city of Boston, the town of Chelsea, and the islands in Boston harbor." * The County was divided March 26th, 1793. Population, 1840, 95,773; number of towns, 2; number of square miles, 14; population to square mile, 6,841.

ESSEX COUNTY.

Essex County was incorporated May 10th, 1643, and is more densely settled than any tract of its size in the United States. It is bounded

N. W. by Rockingham Co. N. H.; S. W. by Middlesex Co.; south by Suffolk Co.; east and north-east by the Atlantic Ocean, and south-east by Massachusetts Bay. Its extensive sea-coast has numerous bays, inlets and harbors, and the commercial enterprise and industry of its citizens have long been celebrated. The shire or County towns are Salem, Newburyport and Ipswich, and the County courts are held by turns at these places. Population, 1840, 94,987; number of towns, 28; number of square miles, 400; population to square mile, 237.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY.

Middlesex County was incorporated May 10th, 1643, and was named after that in England, which includes the city of London. It is bounded north by New Hampshire; N. E. by Essex Co.; S. E. by river Charles, Boston harbor and Norfolk Co., and west by Worcester County. Cambridge and Concord are the County towns. Population, 1840, 106,611; number of towns, 48; number of square miles, 888; population to square mile, 120.

HAMPSHIRE COUNTY.

Hampshire County was incorporated May 7th, 1662, and then included only three towns, Northampton, Springfield and Hadley. Berkshire Co. was taken from it April 21, 1761, and in 1811–12 the Counties of Franklin and Hampden. It is bounded south by Hampden Co., west by Berkshire Co., North by Franklin Co., and east by Worcester Co. The surface of this County is very uneven, the Green Mountain, or Hoosach range, bordering the County on the west, while the range of Mount Tom, in the central part, runs south into Connecticut. Northampton is the County town. Population, 1840, 30,897; number of towns, 23; number of square miles, 590; population to square mile, 52.

PLYMOUTH COUNTY.

Plymouth County was incorporated June 2d, 1685. Plymouth colony was not divided into Counties until 1685, when under Governor-general Andros, it was divided into the present Counties of Plymouth, Barnstable and Bristol. In 1692, the colony was permanently united to Massachusetts by the new charter of William and Mary. It is bounded north by Norfolk Co., south by Barnstable Co. and Buzzard's Bay, east by Massachusetts Bay, and west by Bristol County. The County town is Plymouth. Population, 1840, 47,373; number of towns, 21; number of square miles, 667; population to square mile, 71.

BRISTOL COUNTY.

Bristol County was incorporated June 2d, 1685. This County was a part of the old colony of Plymouth, until the union with Massachusetts in 1685. It is bounded north by Norfolk Co., east by Plymouth Co., south-east by Buzzard's Bay, and west by the Counties of Providence, Bristol and Newport, R. I. The County towns are Taunton and New Bedford. Population, 1840, 60,165; number of towns, 19; number of square miles, 667; population to square mile, 90.

BARNSTABLE COUNTY.

Barnstable County was incorporated June 2d, 1685. This was once a part of Plymouth County. The whole County is a peninsula, joined to Plymouth County by an isthmus only five miles across. This County includes Cape Cod, extending east and north into the Atlantic Ocean. Length of Cape, 65 miles. It is bounded north-west by Plymouth Co., and west by Buzzard's Bay. Barnstable is the County town. Population, 1840, 32,548; number of towns, 13; number of square miles, 367; population to square mile, 89.

DUKES COUNTY.

Dukes County was re-incorporated June 22d, 1695. "Of the territory chartered by Charles I., to Sir Ferdinando Gorges in 1639, were Capawock and Nautican. But the troubles of England prevented the patentee from taking possession of them. These and the other Islands of this County were purchased in 1641, by Thomas Mayhew and his son Thomas Mayhew of Watertown, of James Forrett, agent to William Earl of Sterling. In 1644, the Commissioners of the United Colonies vote, that Massachusetts may receive Martha's Vineyard into their jurisdiction, if they see cause. This appears to have been done. In 1664, Charles II. grants his brother, the Duke of York, this territory and Nantucket, which, by such an assignment, came under the government of New York, and so continued till returned to Massachusetts by their second charter of October 7, 1691. It appears, however, that most of the principal freeholders "in the two towns settled on Martha's Vineyard," were dissatisfied with such a change. Contrary to the advice and wish of their Governor, Mr. Mayhew, they petitioned Massachusetts, October 15, 1673, to be taken under their jurisdiction. They remarked on this occasion, that when Mr. Mayhew first obtained a grant of his territory, he "was obliged to set up the government of the Massachusetts, and since that government hath bene laid by, things hath grown from better to worse vntill we are come to nothing as at this day. Now, for the Lord's sake, graunt vs your powerfull hand to protect vs." Before these places were thus transferred, they, as denominated Martha or Martin's Vineyard, Elizabeth Islands and Noman's Land, with Nantucket, received the general appellation of Duke's County, under New York jurisdiction. All these settlements paid quit rents to that Government, who did not release them from such a claim, even down to 1723, though none had been paid since 1692. While under New York, they were allowed to hold General Courts for the various purposes of their small community. One of these Courts was held at Edgartown, 1672, and another at Nantucket, 1677. Edgartown is the County town. Population, 1840, 3,958; number of towns, 3; number of square miles, 133; population to square mile, 30.

NANTUCKET COUNTY.

Nantucket County was incorporated June 20, 1695. Nantucket, while under New York, belonged to Dukes County. It was bought of Thomas Mayhew, July 2, 1659, by Thomas Macy, for £30, in merchantable pay, and two beaver hats. The many Indians who dwelt there, sold their titles for the most part, to the white inhabitants from one time to another. It was named Sherburne by Governor Lovelace, April 18, 1673.*

The County of Nantucket is composed of five islands, Nantucket being the only one of importance. The main island is about 15 miles long, and, on an average, about 4 miles wide, the soil being low and very sandy. Nantucket Island has a somewhat triangular or three-sided form, the north-east angle being called Sandy Point; the south-east, Sancoty Head; and the western, Smith's Point, opposite which is Tuckanuck Island, with the other small ones belonging to the County.† Population, 1840, 9,012; 1 town; number of square miles, 59; population to square mile, 152.

WORCESTER COUNTY.

Worcester County was incorporated April 2d, 1731. It is the largest County in the State in extent of territory and number of towns. This County extends from New Hampshire, on the north, to Connecticut and Rhode Island on the south. On the west it is bounded by the Counties of Franklin, Hampshire and Hampden, and on the east by Norfolk and Middlesex Counties. The County town is Worcester. Population, 1840, 95,313; number of towns, 56; number of square miles, 1,675; population to square mile, 57.

BERKSHIRE COUNTY.

Berkshire County was taken from Hampshire County, and incorporated April 21st, 1761. This County is the most western, and extends entirely across the State. It is more mountainous than any other County. A range of mountains, called the Hoosack, and which is a continuation of the Green Mountain range of Vermont, crosses the eastern part of this County, separating it from Franklin, Hampshire and Hampden Counties. A second range, called the Taconic Mountains, crosses the western part of the County, separating it from the State of New York. It is bounded north by Bennington County, Vermont; west by Rensselaer and Columbia Counties, New York; south by Litchfield County, Connecticut; and east by the three Counties above mentioned. Lenox is the County town. Population, 1840, 41,680; number of towns, 30; number of square miles, 952; population to square mile, 44.

NORFOLK COUNTY.

Norfolk County was taken from Suffolk County, and incorporated March 26th, 1793. When Massachusetts was divided into four Counties, in 1643, Norfolk was one of them. This County then embraced Salisbury, Hampton, Haverhill, Exeter, Dover, and Strawberry Bank, afterwards called Portsmouth. Salisbury became the chief town of this shire at a General Court, commencing May 2, 1649. Through the influence of Edward Randolph and others, the Royal Council ordered Massachusetts to relinquish their jurisdiction over Hampton, Exeter, Portsmouth and Dover. This was done February 4th, 1680. Our legislature immediately required Salisbury, Haverhill, and Amesbury to be re-united with Essex.*

Norfolk County is bounded north-east by Boston harbor, north by Suffolk Co., west by south-east part of Worcester Co., south by the north-east part of Rhode Island, and south, south-east and east, by the Counties of Bristol and Plymouth. The County town is Dedham. Population, 1840, 53,140; number of towns, 22; number of square miles, 445; population to square mile, 119.

FRANKLIN COUNTY.

Franklin County was originally the north part of Hampshire County, and was incorporated June 24, 1811. Connecticut river divides this County from north to south; Miller's river divides the eastern half, and Deerfield river divides the western. It is bounded north by Windham Co. Vt., and a part of Cheshire Co. N. Hampshire; east by Worcester Co.; south by Hampshire Co., and west by Berkshire Co. Greenfield is the County town. Population, 1840, 28,812; number of towns, 26; number of square miles, 723; population to square mile, 40.

HAMPDEN COUNTY.

Hampden County was the southern section of Hampshire County, and was incorporated February 25, 1812. It was named in honor of John Hampden, an able advocate for liberty in the time of Charles I. The Connecticut river crosses this County from north to south, nearly in the middle; the Chickopee and its branches pass through the eastern part, and run west into the Connecticut; Westfield river and its branches pass through the western part, and run east into the Connecticut.

This County is bounded north by Hampshire Co., east by Worcester Co., south by Tolland and Hartford Counties, Ct., and west by the County of Berkshire. Springfield is the County town. Population, 1840, 37,336; number of towns, 18; number of square miles, 650; population to square mile, 57.

* New style. † The date, when the Speaker was chosen, is given in each case. He held his office till his successor was elected, except when otherwise stated. In "1645, May 14 — It was resolved upon ye question by vote, yt ye Speaker is Moderator of ye house of deputies for ye time being, and hath a castinge vote when it falls out to be an equi vote." P Though the Deputies constituted a part of the Government, from May 14, 1634, yet it does not appear that any Speaker served, for such a body, before 1644. The Assistants and Deputies held their sessions together in one room, and, of course, the Governor, or his Deputy presiding, no Speaker was needed. A Served only one day. B Was chosen for the first week. Court Records do not inform us whether he continued longer, or if he did not who immediately followed him. C He was chosen to serve for the first week. Mr. Russell appears to have officiated for the rest of the session, as well as the other sessions, preceding the one of his successor. D He was elected in 1650, but for a day; and Mr. Hawthorne for the Session. E The Session commencing June 8, 1692, was the first under the Charter of William and Mary. During this Patent the Governor, when he saw fit, negatived the Speaker elected by the House. F Mr. Bond had deceased before the election of Mr. Townsend in 1696. G Election vetoed by Governor Shute, who dissolved the Court, May 30, 1720, because the House refused to choose any other Speaker.

A Farmer's Genealogical Register says that Mr. Bradstreet was Secretary to 1643. This must be a mistake. It does not agree with the Record. B It was proposed, October 17, 1649, by General Court, that the people grant to them the appointment of Secretary, at the next election, as an experiment to be tried for a year; but there is no entry to show that the alteration was made under the first charter.

By this charter the appointment of Secretary is reserved, as a right of the Crown, which was adhered to till the dissolution of Gen. Court by Gov. Gage, June 17, 1774. D Mr. Wheelwright declined the 30th of June. E Prior to Mr. Gray's election, the House voted that no person should hold the office of Treasurer, unless he would give bonds. The Council replied that such conditions were unprecedented. The House adhered to its vote, and Mr. Gray was elected on the new terms. Provincial Congress voted, Oct. 14, 1774, that no more taxes be paid to Harrison Gray. April 26, 1777, it was voted that the Treasurer be required to give bonds for £50,000. F Mr. Dexter declined. G Mr. Jarvis declined the 6th.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH OF GOV. JOHN CARVER.

JOHN CARVER* was the first Governor of Plymouth, and stands at the head of those who signed the Compact on board the Mayflower, in 1620. He had previously been an active and efficient agent of the Leyden Church, in the various and difficult negotiations which preceded the embarkation of the Pilgrims for America. He was suddenly seized, while laboring in the field, with a violent pain in the head, by some supposed to have been caused by what is called a stroke of the sun, and died April 5th, 1621. His wife died about six weeks after. His family, on their arrival, in 1620, consisted of eight person, including John Howland and his wife Elizabeth, and perhaps one or more children, and Jasper the boy of Gov. Carver, who died Dec. 6, 1620. The name of Carver does not appear in the division of land in 1623, or the division of cattle in 1627. It is still difficult to make out the number of eight in Gov. Carver's family, without presuming (as is suggested by Dr. Shurtleff) that Henry Samson and Humility Cooper, who came in the Mayflower and have no places assigned to them, were of that number. Judge Mitchell says, in his History of Bridgewater, " A family, however, of this name, was in Marshfield, ever after 1638 ; at which date Robert Carver had a grant of land at Green's Harbor, and died there in 1680, æ. 86. John Carver (son of Robert, perhaps) died in Marshfield, 1679, æ. 42, leaving a widow, Milicent, who was daughter of William Ford, and eight children. William Carver, eldest son of John, died at Marshfield 1760, æ. 102, and is noticed by Gov. Hutchinson and Dr. Belknap, in the Biography of Gov. Carver, as the grandson of the Governor; but in Pemberton's Ms. Journal, in the library of the Mass. Historical Society, he is called the nephew of Gov. Carver." Joshua Carver, late of Marshfield, aged over 90, was of the same family.

MASSACHUSETTS MILITIA.

[Corrected at the office of the Adjutant General, to January, 1847.]

The Militia of Massachusetts is divided into two classes, the Active and enrolled — the latter consists of all "able-bodied white male citizens, of the age of eighteen years, and under that of forty-five, excepting persons enlisted into volunteer companies, and persons exempted by law or incapacitated by physical and other causes." (See Sec. 5, Militia Law.) The whole number enrolled in 1846, as appears from the Returns of the Assessors of cities and towns, (whose duty it is to make such returns,) is 90,349.

The Active Militia consists of Volunteers, who are paid a per diem allowance when on duty, (amounting, in the whole, to $6 per annum, each man.) They consist, by the Brigade Returns of 1846, of 5,490 men. These are organized into three Divisions, and six Brigades, embracing two Divisionary Corps of Cadets, one Troop of Cavalry, five Regiments, and two "annexed" Companies of Artillery, and nine Regiments of Light Infantry.

TOWN OFFICERS.

"This Year this Plantation began y^e^ Practice of Choosing men, that we now call Selectmen or Townsmen. They Choose 12 this year to order y^e^ Affairs of y^e^ Plantation, who were to have their Monthly Meetings, and their Orders being Confirmed by y^e^ Plantation were of full force and binding to y^e^ Inhabitants. There were many orders made this year concerning Cattle and Fences, &c. and Penalties annexed."—Blake's Annals of Dorchester, 1633.

The number of Selectmen has been varied by different towns, since 1633 to the present time, from twelve to three. The largest number in the State, now authorized by any town, is seven. Some have five, but most towns have only three.

In our circular of June, we requested a complete list of the Town Officers, not being aware of the great number which towns find it necessary to elect, or appoint. Some of our correspondents supposed, and correctly, that our request embraced the principal ones only, and made returns accordingly. Others were faithful to the language of our circular, and sent us full lists; numbering for a single town, in some cases, above one hundred officers. While we would thank such for their faithfulness, we feel that an apology is due to them for the unnecessary labor to which they were subjected through our ignorance of the extensive ramifications of town organization.

Annual Town Meetings.

"The annual meeting of each town shall be held in the month of March or April; and other meetings shall be held at such other times as the selectmen shall order." — Revised Statutes, ch. 15, sec. 18.

Qualifications of Voters.

"Every male citizen, of twenty-one years of age and upwards, (excepting paupers and persons under guardianship,) who shall have resided within the state one year, and within the town in which he may claim right to vote, six months next preceding any meeting for the transaction of town affairs, and who shall have paid, by himself or his parent, master, or guardian, any State or County tax, which shall, within two years next preceding such meeting, have been assessed upon him in any town; and also, every citizen who shall be by law exempted from taxation, and who shall, in all other respects, be qualified as aforesaid, shall have a right to vote at such town meetings, upon all questions concerning town affairs; and no other person shall be entitled to vote at such meeting." — Ch. 15, sec. 17.

Although changes may be made in some of the towns of the officers given in the following table, at the annual elections, still most of them, probably, will remain the same; besides, the value of the table for statistical purposes, if corrected from year to year, is quite as important as that of mere reference.

Admission to the College.

It is very desirable and important, that the candidates should be well and correctly prepared, particularly in grammatical and elementary knowledge. If they have more time than is requisite for this purpose, instructors are desired and advised, for obvious reasons, not to anticipate the College studies, but rather to extend their studies to other authors.

The examination for the Freshman Class occupies two days, and takes place on the Monday and Tuesday (the 23d and 24th of August, 1847) of Commencement week, beginning precisely at 6 o'clock, A. M., on Monday morning. Attendance on both days is required.

No person will be examined for admission to the College at any other time than the commencement of a term, except in extraordinary cases.

Every person, before examination, must produce proper testimonials of a good moral character, and, after being accepted on examination, must give a bond, with sureties, of which one at least must belong to this Commonwealth, to the satisfaction of the Steward of the College, in the sum of four hundred dollars, to pay all charges accruing under the laws and customs of the University. A certificate that such bond has been given must be exhibited to the President, before any person can be admitted to the privileges of the institution.

The Academical year is divided into two Terms and two Vacations:

The first term commences on the Friday next succeeding Commencement (27th of August, 1847), and continues twenty weeks.

The first Vacation commences at the end of the first Term (January 15th, 1847), and continues six weeks.

The second Term commences at the end of the first Vacation (February 26th, 1847), and continues twenty weeks.

The second Vacation commences at the end of the second Term, (July 16th), and continues until the Friday after Commencement.

The public Exhibitions are on the third Tuesday (20th) of October, the first Tuesday (4th) of May, and the last Wednesday of the second Term (14th of July).

The Dudleian Lecture is on the second Wednesday (12th) of May.

Commencement is on the fourth Wednesday, (25th) of August, 1847.

The bills containing college charges are to be made out at the end of each term; and must be settled within a week from the commencement of the succeeding term.

Expenses.

The necessary expenses of an undergraduate for a year, included in the college bills, are as follows: —

Instruction, Library, Lecture-rooms,	$75·00
Rent and care of Room,	15·00
Board for 40 weeks at $2·25 per week,	90·00
Or Board for 40 weeks at $1·75 per week,	$70·00
Text-books (average)	12·00
Special Repairs, &c.,	from 1 to 2·00
	$194·00

Other expenses must vary with the economy of each student. Wood and coal ready for use are delivered at the students' rooms, by the lessee of the College wharf, at the market price, usually at $6·50 per cord for wood, and $7 per ton for coal. The price of washing is from $3 to $5 per quarter. The rent of rooms in private houses, from $30 to $60 per annum. Board in the town, from $2·25 to $3·50. The students find their own beds and furniture.

LAW SCHOOL.

Faculty of Law.—Hon. Edward Everett, LL.D., President, Simon Greenleaf, LL.D., Hon. William Kent, LL.D.

The design of this Institution is to afford a complete course of legal education for gentlemen intended for the Bar in any of the United States, and also a systematic course of studies in commercial jurisprudence for those who intend to devote themselves exclusively to mercantile pursuits.

No examination, and no particular course of previous study, are necessary for admission; but the student must produce testimonials of good moral character.

Students may enter the School in any stage of their professional studies, or mercantile pursuits. But they are advised, with a view to their own advantage and improvement, to enter at the beginning of those studies, rather than at a later period. They may also elect what particular studies they will pursue.

The fees are $50 a term, and $25 for half or any lesser fraction of a term; for which sum, without any additional charge, students have the use of the lecture-rooms, the Law and College Libraries, and the text-books; and they are admitted free to all the public lectures in the College. The other expenses for a term are as follows: —

Board, 20 weeks, from $1·75 to $3·50 per week,	from $35	to	$70
Room-rent, including care of room, but not making fires,	26	to	52
Furniture (if the student does not furnish his own),	10	to	20
Washing,	7·50	to	15
Fuel, for the first or winter term, from August to January,	12	to	21
" for the second or summer term, from Feb. to July,	6	to	10
Servant (if one is employed) to make fires, &c.,	5	to	10
	$95·50	to	$188

MEDICAL SCHOOL.

The Medical Lectures form a department of instruction in Harvard University. They begin annually, at the Medical College, in Grove Street, Boston, on the first Wednesday in November, and continue four months.

The Introductory Lecture is given at 12 o'clock of the above day, in the Anatomical Theatre, by the Professors in rotation.

The following are the courses of Lectures delivered in this College, with the fees annexed.

		Fees.
Anatomy and Operative Surgery,	Prof. Warren.	$15·00
Midwifery and Med. Jurisprudence,	Prof. Channing.	10·00
Materia Medica,	Prof. Bigelow.	10·00
Principles of Surg. and Clin. Surg.,	Prof. Hayward.	10·00
Chemistry,	Prof. Webster.	15·00
Theory and Practice of Physic and Clinical Medicine,	Profs. Ware and Bigelow.	15·00

The fee for matriculation is $3. This fee is appropriated to the increase of the Library, and is to be paid to the Dean by all persons who propose to attend any of the courses.

The Hospital and Library are gratuitous. Tickets for the Dissecting-Room, $5. No exertions are spared to obtain a supply of subjects according to the existing laws, and to furnish to the class the means of pursuing the important branch of practical anatomy. Board is as low as in any of our cities.

The Clinical Lectures in Medicine and Surgery are given to the class on cases in the Massachusetts General Hospital, three times a week. Surgical operations at the Hospital are frequent. An abundant opportunity is thus furnished to students for most important practical observation and study.

Terms of Admission.

Candidates for admission to the Freshman Class are examined in Geography, Vulgar Arithmetic and Algebra through Simple Equations; in English, Latin and Greek Grammar; including Prosody in Virgil and Cicero's Select Orations; in Cæsar's Commentaries, or Sallust; and in the Greek Testament, and in Jacobs', Colton's or Felton's Greek Reader.

For admission to an advanced standing, an examination must also be sustained in the studies to which the class have attended since admission.

The stated time for admission is on the day preceding Commencement; but persons may be examined in any other part of the College Terms.

Testimonials of good moral character are in all cases required, and a probation of six months before students are matriculated, during which time they are subject to all the laws and regulations of College.

Many who apply for admission are imperfectly prepared in the English studies, particularly in Arithmetic and Geography. As these studies are not pursued in College, it is necessary that the preparation in them should be full and thorough.

Vacations.

The first, from Commencement, four weeks.
The second, from the third Wednesday in December, six weeks.
The third, from the first Wednesday in May, three weeks.
Commencement is on the third Wednesday in August.

Students are required to be present the whole of the term time, unless excused by the President. The loss of even a few days, especially at the beginning of a term, is exceedingly undesirable.

Expenses.

Tuition, $10 a term,	$30·00	$30·00
Room Rent, Library charges, ordinary repairs, &c.	9·00	11·00
Board from $1 to $2 per week,	48·75	78·00
Washing,	5·00	10·00
Fuel,	5·00	10·00
	$97·75	$139·00

The amount of incidental expenses will depend very much on the habits of the student, and the liberality of his allowance. It is earnestly recommended to parents and guardians not to authorize their sons and wards to obtain credits here, and not to pay debts contracted without their authority.

No back tuition is required; but those who enter on an advanced standing, unless they come from another College, pay the following sums as entrance money, viz.: Sophomores, $10; Juniors, $15; Seniors, $20.

The income of the Charity Funds, amounting to about eight hundred dollars per annum, is distributed among indigent young men of merit, to aid them in the payment of their bills. This pays about two-thirds of the tuition of those who apply. No application for this aid will be considered while the applicant is in arrears for the other charges besides tuition, in more than one term-bill.

Candidates for a higher standing are examined in the same, and also in the part of the course of study in College gone over by the Class to which they may desire admission.

The stated times for examination are the Wednesday preceding Commencement, and the first day of the following term. But candidates may be examined and admitted at other times in the year, excepting that no admission to the Senior Class is allowed later than the beginning of the second term.

Previously to examination, the candidate must exhibit satisfactory testimonials, that he sustains a good moral character. If he has been a member of any other College, he will be expected to present a certificate of regular dismission.

No one can be admitted to the Freshmen Class until he has completed his fourteenth year; and no one to an advanced standing without a corresponding increase of age.

Vacations.

1. Four weeks from Commencement.
2. Six weeks from the Wednesday preceding the annual State Thanksgiving.
3. Three weeks from the third Wednesday of April.

Such students as are obliged by their circumstances to teach school in winter, are allowed to be absent for the purpose.

Expenses.

The following are the principal necessary expenses, exclusive of vacations: —

Tuition, $11 per term,	$33·00	$33·00
Room Rent, $3 per term,	9·00	9·00
Recitation Rooms, and ordinary incidentals, $2 per term,	6·00	6·00
Fuel and Lights, from $9 to $11,	9·00	11·00
Board, lowest price in companies, $1 per week; highest price in families, $2 per week; making per year of thirty-nine weeks,	39·00	78·00

Good board in families may be had at 1·50 per week.

The expenses for room-rent, fuel and lights, are estimated on the supposition that two students occupy the same room.

A small charge, additional to the regular tuition, is requisite the third term of the Sophomore year, for the instruction in French, and one of the terms of Junior or Senior year, for the Lectures on Anatomy.

In case of admission to an advanced standing, a fee of five dollars and fifty cents per term, which is one half of the regular charge for tuition, will be required, unless such standing shall have been obtained in another College.

Payments.

The amount of the first-term bill must be paid by each student on his admission. Each subsequent term bill becomes due at the close of the term for which it is assessed. COMMON SCHOOLS.

It is a difficult matter to convey to the reader, in a few words, any adequate idea of the great mass of information, which, in one form and another, has proceeded from the ACT of 1837 — establishing a BOARD OF EDUCATION.

TEN ANNUAL REPORTS have been made by the Board, detailing their operations during each successive year, and accompanied by such suggestions as were deemed important in aid of the cause. TEN REPORTS have also been made by the Secretary of the Board, in which he has discussed with great particularity and ability the defects in our educational system, and suggested their appropriate remedies.

EIGHT VOLUMES of abstracts from the reports of the school committees of the various towns, have been prepared by the Secretary, with great labor, in which the most valuable information as to the defects to be remedied, and the progress which has been made in the conduct of the schools, as verified by experience, is rendered available to the whole people of the Commonwealth.*

Other educational papers have been prepared and circulated at individual expense, in aid of the legislation which originated in the Act of 1837, and it is believed have exerted a favorable influence among the common schools.†

* See 8th, 9th, and 10th Reports of Board of Education.

† In December, 1842, the Hon. Martin Brimmer, then Mayor elect of the city of Boston, authorized, at his own expense, an edition of 3,500 copies of a valuable work, of 552 pages, entitled "The School and School Master," by Rev. Alonzo Potter, D.D., and G. B. Emerson, Esq., and made a donation of a copy to each of the District Schools of the Commonwealth, and one to each School Committee.

In 1845-6, the Hon. Abbott Lawrence gave $2,000 to the Latin School of Boston, and $2,000 to the High School, — the interest on the same to be annually appropriated for suitable prizes. Mr. Brimmer also presented to the Latin School Library, a complete and uniform set of the Latin Classics, above 100 volumes. Joseph Coolidge, Esq., a set of Greek Classics, now publishing in Paris.

An Educational Journal has been conducted by the Secretary for the space of eight years, without personal compensation; and this is esteemed by the friends of the cause the ablest work, of the kind, in the world. The Secretary has visited Foreign lands, and has placed within the reach of our people the results of educational experiments throughout the civilized world.

It is impossible to state, with entire accuracy, the number of pages which has been submitted to the permanent study of the people of this Commonwealth; but we believe that a fair estimate would exceed 14,000,000.

It is highly creditable to our State, that all parties unite in advancing the cause of the common schools. The Legislature has ever acted promptly, when correctly informed of the wants of the people. Our NORMAL SCHOOLS have been handsomely sustained, and last spring an act was passed authorizing an annual appropriation of twenty-five hundred dollars for establishing TEACHERS' INSTITUTES, which may be denominated TEMPORARY NORMAL SCHOOLS.

The law provides, that, 1. "Whenever reasonable assurance shall be given to the Board of Education, that a number not less than seventy teachers of Common Schools, shall desire to assemble for the purpose of forming a Teachers' Institute, and to remain in session for a period not less than ten working days, the said board, by a committee of their body, or by their Secretary, or, in case of his inability, by such person or persons as they may delegate, shall appoint a time and place for said meeting, make suitable arrangements therefor, and give due notice thereof."

2. "For the purpose of defraying the expenses of rooms, fires, lights, attendance, or other necessary charges, and for procuring teachers and lectures for any one Institute," — the sum of two hundred dollars is authorized to be expended by the ACT referred to.

The wisdom of this law has already been made manifest. During the autumn of 1846, six Institutes were organized in the following places, with signal success: —

New Salem,	Franklin Co.,	where about		100	Teachers	assembled.
Grafton,	Worcester Co.,	"	"	50	"	"
Lee,	Berkshire Co.,	"	"	100	"	"
Andover,	Essex Co.,	"	"	50	"	"
Taunton,	Bristol Co.,	"	"	100	"	"
Harwich,	Barnstable Co.,	"	"	50	"	"

Making in all 450 Teachers. The Institutes were opened by the Secretary of the Board of Education, — and his labors were followed by those of other experienced and practical teachers. With these Institutes to aid those who, from peculiar circumstances, are unable to avail themselves of the Normal Schools; and the Normal Schools to prepare the coming generations for the high vocation of teaching, — the Commonwealth may look forward to the future with a well-grounded hope, that her destiny is to be one of sure and intelligent progress.

State Normal Schools.

Established by Law, 1838.

State Normal Schools are Seminaries for the preparation of teachers. There are, at present, three in this Commonwealth; one at West Newton, Middlesex County; one at Bridgewater, Plymouth County; and one at Westfield, Hampden County. It is but due to justice to say, that the liberal appropriations of the State for supporting these most important schools were preceded by the munificence of the Hon. Edmund Dwight, — who gave ten thousand dollars towards establishing them, provided the Legislature would vote as much more. The results of the Institutions have been of the most gratifying nature.

State Normal School at West Newton.

This School was first established at Lexington, in 1839, and was removed to West Newton, 1844. It is intended for female teachers only. No one can be admitted, who is less than 16 years of age; nor unless she brings a certificate of good moral character, and shall be found able to bear a thorough examination in the branches generally taught in our Common Schools: Reading, Spelling, Arithmetic, Grammar, Writing, and Geography.

No one can be admitted, unless it be her declared intention to become a teacher, nor for a shorter time than three terms. There are three terms in the year; one of 12, and the other two of 15 weeks each. The winter term, of 12 weeks, commences on the 2d Wednesday in January. The Summer term, of 15 weeks, commences on the 2d Wednesday in April. The Autumn term, on the 2d Wednesday in September. Between the Summer and Autumn terms, there is a vacation of 6 weeks; between each of the other terms, a vacation of two weeks.

The tuition will be gratuitous to those who are inhabitants of the State, or engage to become teachers in the State, and in the public schools. Board and washing may be had from $2·00 to $2·25 per week. The teachers are Cyrus Peirce, Principal; Miss E. N. Lincoln, Miss Sarah Watson, Miss M. Livermore, Assistants.

Number of pupils entered this School, since its establishment at Lexington, ... 364
Number continued one year and more, ... 303
" Deceased, ... 16
" Married, ... 29

State Normal School, Bridgewater.

This School was commenced September 9th, 1840. It is designed for teachers of both sexes. Those desirous of entering the School must be present on the first day of the term, to undergo an examination in Reading, Writing, Spelling, Grammar, and Arithmetic. They must present a certificate of good moral character, and must declare an intention of remaining at the School for not less than three successive terms. No one will be received after the commencement of a term, nor, except in special cases, if he or she intends to leave during the term. Male pupils must be, at least, 17, and females, at least, 16 years of age. The terms will commence this year (1847) on the 24th of March; 4th of August; 1st of December. Each term is fourteen weeks. Tuition is free to all who intend to become teachers (of Public Schools) in this State. Board, $2.00 per week.

NICHOLAS TILLINGHAST, Principal.

Number of pupils admitted to the School to the close of the year 1846, — 443.

Several of this number remained but a short time.

The former regulations of the School required the pupils to remain at least two terms; but these terms were not necessarily successive, and about 80 of those who may be considered to have become scholars have not yet complied with the requirement. 120 remained a full year at the School, and of these, 101 have been or are teachers in the Common Schools of Massachusetts; 11 have not taught at all, and the vocation of 8 is unknown.

State Normal School, Westfield.

The requisitions of this School are similar to those of the other two. It is intended for the teachers of both sexes. The terms commence on the 3d Wednesday in August, 2d Wednesday in December and April, and each continues 14 weeks. Board and washing, $1·75 per week.

Libraries, Lyceums, &c. in Massachusetts.

Among the means of Popular Education may be properly enumerated, Town, Social, School or Public Libraries, and "Mechanic Institutes, Lyceums, Literary Societies, or Associations under any name, instituted for the delivery of courses of popular lectures."

According to a Report made by the Hon. Secretary of the Board of Education, in 1840, — there were, in the State, 299 Social Libraries; number of volumes, 180,028; estimated value, $191,538, — sixteen towns, of 20,966 inhabitants, not represented, in the returns which furnish the results stated. Estimated number of volumes, in the public Libraries of all kinds, in the State, omitting the circulating Libraries, 1840, — about 300,000. This estimate does not include Sabbath School Books. Since 1840, the State has paid for School Libraries, $58,740, and the Districts as much more, making a total of $117,480, and the number of volumes purchased may be estimated at 200,000. Considerable additions, since that period, have been made to our Public Libraries.

During the same year, 1840, the same able Report gives the following returns of Lyceums, &c. in the State.

Eight Mechanics' Institutes; 1,430 members; — 137 Lyceums; average number of Attendants, 32,693. Expenses for Lectures, including incidental, $21,197. This number does not include private Debating Clubs, Ciceronian Associations, &c.

The number of Lyceums has probably decreased since 1840; the number returned to us from 260 towns being less than 50.

American Antiquarian Society, Worcester.
Incorporated, 1812.

The American Antiquarian Society, established for the purpose of collecting and preserving the materials of History, more especially American History, was incorporated by the Legislature of Massachusetts in 1812.

Isaiah Thomas, the distinguished Printer and Publisher, and author of "The History of Printing in America," was the first President, and has been the greatest benefactor of this Institution. A brick edifice for the Library and Cabinet, erected at his expense, was completed in 1820. His private collection of books, which was a considerable one, became the basis of the Library. Extensive additions were made to the building after his death from resources provided by his will; and the principal portion of the funds of the Society now amounting to more than $27,000, resulted from his bequests.

The Library of the Society now exceeds 16,000 volumes. Its Cabinet contains many articles of curiosity and interest; and its manuscripts, coins, &c., are of considerable value. Two volumes of Transactions, and a Catalogue of the Library, have been published; and a third volume of Transactions is in preparation for the press.

There are two meetings of the Society in the year: one at Worcester on the 23d day of October, the day on which Columbus discovered America; the other in Boston on the last Wednesday of May. The Council of the Society meet on the last Wednesday of each month at Antiquarian Hall in Worcester.

The officers for the year ending Oct. 23, 1847, are, Hon. Edward Everett, LL.D. President; William B. Sprague, D.D., John Davis, LL.D., Vice-Presidents; Hon. CHURCHES AND CLERGYMEN IN MASSACHUSETTS.

"Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the Gospel should live of the Gospel." — 1 Cor. ch. ix, v. 14.

It would afford us great pleasure to be able to give the reader a chapter of Statistics in reference to the various Denominations and Churches of this Commonwealth; but the materials for such a chapter are yet to be gathered. May we ask of our correspondents, contributions in view to this end for another year? Our request embraces statistics of usefulness, as well as of numbers; for the bodily array of a sect or party affords, of itself, no evidence of its faithfulness to the high standard of Christianity.

"For I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat: I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in: naked, and ye clothed me: I was sick, and ye visited me: I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." Such is the standard of Christ, and such should be that of his followers, of whatever sect or name.

In giving the number of Churches, of different denominations, of Massachusetts, we are compelled to rely rather upon the estimates of others than upon actual returns or accounts. We have received accurate returns from portions of the State, — and hope to be able to make a complete Table of all, — for our next volume, embracing the number of Communicants, the extent of each Society, the amount of means appropriated to the support of the Clergy, and a full account of Sabbath Schools. An estimate of the number of some of the sects in Massachusetts, may be seen in the following Table.

Cong. Trin. Churches	434,	Preachers,	472,	Church Members,	62,740

RELIGIOUS ASSOCIATIONS.

Although each denomination of Christians has its own associations, its own prescribed forms of action, and its own peculiar doctrines to inculcate, still it is a subject of congratulation that theological discussions are conducted with less asperity of feeling than in former times, and that differences of opinion are regarded with enlarged views and with a more becoming charity.* The arrogance of sect or party is giving way to the milder spirit of humility, and partizans are actually becoming reconciled to the conviction that they all are of the same origin, children of the same Father, and heirs alike to the imperfections and errors of man. Greatness is ever characterised by meekness, integrity by modesty, and true knowledge by the consciousness of ignorance; and while it is the honest purpose of each and every denomination faithfully to do its duty, — moral and religious progress will be the inevitable result of the separate and combined action of all, — and the world will be made better and happier. No denomination of Christians, however few in number, should be treated with neglect or discourtesy; for, if numbers prove the infallibleness of a sect, then the heathen may claim a right to dictate to the Christian, and the Catholic to the Protestant. The cause of truth requires uncompromising integrity, — but its spirit is that of EVER-ENDURING CHARITY.

The number of Religious Associations, in Massachusetts, may be estimated at about one hundred. This estimate is made up of County or State associations, and does not include the churches or societies of any town.

CHARITABLE ASSOCIATIONS.

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is CHARITY."
1 Cor. xiii. 13.

The number of Charitable Societies returned to us from 261 towns is 172, 113 of which are Ladies' Associations. These are exclusive of those in the city of Boston. This is far below the actual number. If we may estimate from the data furnished us, including the sewing circles connected with Religious Societies in the State, the number cannot be less than 500. To the LADIES, the poor, the suffering, the troubled, and the oppressed, are indebted for much that is done for their relief. They are to the race, what the mother is to the child, the never-failing source of peace and consolation, of encouragement and charity. They are moved by the liveliest and the noblest sympathies of our nature; and if the men furnish most of the means, it must be admitted, that the ladies often furnish both the opportunity and the motives to action. If they have no money, they have immediate recourse to the needle and to the "FAIR," and what is denied to the individual is willingly and promptly contributed to the "circle." It is not, however, the charity afforded by the purse of the rich, that we most commend, but the spirit that "beareth all things, believeth all things, hopeth all things, endureth all things;" the deeds that give cheerfulness to the sad, hope to the desponding, and the outspread hand of kindness to the sinking.

We have before us an interesting pamphlet, written by the Hon. Samuel A. Eliot, late Mayor of Boston, and first published in the North American Review, of July, 1845, "on the public and private Charities in Boston." Availing himself of an estimate of President Quincy, made in 1830, for the 15 years prior to that period, — he makes additions for the next 15 years, — giving an aggregate, for the 30 years, of $2,938,021.63. After enumerating several sources of charity from which he received no definite information, and which, if accurately estimated, would materially add to the sum already given, he closes the paragraph with the following beautiful passage:

"But there is another branch of benevolence, the great extent of which can neither be doubted, nor precisely ascertained; and that is, the unnumbered acts of love, pity, and sympathy, which are and can be known only to the agent, the recipient, and Him who formed them to give and to receive. It would be no matter of surprise, if the amount bestowed in this secret way should make a near approach to that given openly; but as such deeds cannot be counted, nor their value be estimated in dollars and cents, the whole must be left to conjecture, till the arrival of that day when the gift even of a cup of cold water shall meet with its fit reward."

It is our intention to gather further information upon this subject, so that we may be able to furnish the reader, in our next volume, with some idea of the extent and kind of public and private Charities within the limits of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

In one of the Reports sent us by the towns, in answer to our circular of inquiry, the object of a Ladies' Charitable Association is thus beautifully stated, "to aid the silent poor." With such self-impelling motives to duty, we may look for those refined feelings of humility which shrink from publicity, and have no sympathy for arithmetical estimates. We can assure all such, that our motives for gathering this information have higher objects in view than merely to gratify idle curiosity, and that names will be withheld whenever desired by the authors.

Its objects are — First, To assist the needy widows and children of deceased members. Second, To collect such facts as tend to the improvement of navigation. Third, To form a Museum of Natural and Artificial Curiosities; particularly such as are to be found beyond the Cape of Good Hope and Cape Horn. The Museum and Library of the Institution are quite valuable.

There are several other associations, whose objects are entirely for the moral improvement and relief of seamen and their families in Salem, New Bedford, and in other places; but we have received no particular or recent account of them.

* A building has been erected by this Society, in Purchase Street, at an expense of $40,000. It is designed as a boarding-house for the sailors, and will accommodate nearly 200 persons. The Boston Port Society is now erecting a Mariners' House, North Square, which will cost about $40,000. Connected with this Society is the "Bethel" of Rev. Mr. Taylor.

BUSINESS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

There is no word in our language so comprehensive in its signification as the word business. It embraces every variety of employment or occupation. Although used sometimes to represent professional avocations, still it is more properly applied to the affairs of the merchant, the tradesman, the farmer, the mechanic, or those classes of men who negotiate for the purposes of gain.

Business is based upon the wants of mankind; and as population increases, WANTS are multiplied, to give every one a calling, so that each person may secure an income from society for his labor. All business should be connected with motives which are proper to man, 1st, For self-support, and for the support of those in relation to whom we stand as natural protectors; and, 2d, For the good of society. No business thrives without industry, and no industry succeeds without prudence and frugality, and neither is to be commended unless in connection with a just appreciation of MORAL DUTY. A liberal portion of all that is gained by business, over and above what is necessary to supply our physical wants, and to educate our children, should be appropriated to the moral improvement of the race. The businessman is to be respected, not according to the amount of gain he secures to himself, but according to the good he accomplishes with the means he possesses.

Massachusetts is literally a business State. Her sons have ever been among the most active and enterprising of our country. It is to be feared, however, that even our people are too ambitious of acquiring sudden wealth to ensure permanent success. There is evidently too much haste, and too great a desire to trade, manifested in all that we see about us. Everybody seems to be in a prodigious hurry, and no one appears to have spare time enough to eat his ordinary meals. This is wrong; and, in the long run, it proves to be so. Sir E. L. Bulwer says, with much truth, "That eager desire to press forward, not so much to conquer obstacles as to elude them; that gambling with the solemn destinies of life, seeking ever to set success upon the chance of a die; that hastening from the wish conceived to the end accomplished; that thirst after quick returns to ingenious toil, and breathless spurrings along short cuts to the goal which we see everywhere around us, from the mechanics' institute to the stock-market, beginning in education with the primers of infancy, — deluging us with 'Philosophies for the Millions,' and 'Sciences made Easy;' characterizing the books of our writers, the speeches of our statesmen, no less than the dealings of our speculators, seem, I confess, to me, to constitute a very diseased and very general symptom of the times. I hold that the greatest friend to man is labor; that knowledge without toil, if possible, were worthless; that toil in pursuit of knowledge is the best knowledge we can attain; that the continuous effort for fame is nobler than fame itself; that it is not wealth suddenly acquired which is deserving of homage, but the virtues which a man exercises in the slow pursuit of wealth, — the abilities so called forth, the self-denials so imposed; in a word, that labor and patience are the only true schoolmasters; and both of them are very much abroad in the presence of the fashionable schoolmaster we have installed at home."

It has been estimated by careful observers, that "among one hundred merchants and traders, not more than three, in the city of Boston, ever acquire independence."* In the year 1800, a gentleman took a memorandum of every person doing business on Long Wharf, Boston; and, in 1840, only five in one hundred remained. They had all, in that time, either failed or died destitute of property. An intelligent director of the Union Bank, Boston, states, that of one thousand accounts, which were opened with them in starting (1798), only six remained; they had, during forty years, either failed or died destitute of property. It is estimated that over ninety per cent. of all the estates settled at the probate office, county of Suffolk, are insolvent. This is a most sad account for the most substantial city of America. It has been estimated, however, that the ultimate success of business-men in other cities is still less. The number of bankrupts under the U. S. bankrupt law was 33,729. The dividend paid on the aggregate debts out of the aggregate property surrendered was less than two and a half per centum. Massachusetts' debtors paid four per cent.; Maine, less than half per cent.; New Hampshire and Connecticut, less than one per cent.; the southern district of New York (including the city), one per cent.; while the northern district paid thirteen and two thirds per cent., the highest paid in the United States. We have received a considerable number of returns from the towns of Massachusetts, with respect to failures, during the last five or ten years, and hope to be able to furnish, in our next volume, further particulars in regard to this important subject. But these items are sufficient to prove that the modes of doing business in this country are wrong. When John Randolph exclaimed that he had discovered the philosopher's stone, in the maxim "PAY AS YOU GO," he uttered an important truth. The CREDIT SYSTEM, with a people who are proverbially active and elastic in their habits, is a dangerous one. It is perfectly deceptive to the young, and ruinous to the old. It leads to great risks, and desperate shifts to avoid destruction. The chain of a large portion of business, being made up of links of hazard, cannot prove otherwise than destructive to sound integrity.

Of what use is labor-saving machinery, unless time be saved to the operative and others, for improvement of mind? Of what moral service is the railroad, unless the merchant and the traveller make intelligent use of the time which they save? Of what consequence to the world is steam-navigation, unless it be made to promote the moral welfare of nations? The destiny of man is above a trifling, bustling progress in a circle. He should have in view some exalted end. There is more business done than the condition of man requires, and less virtue produced than we have the power to create. Let more of our sons become farmers or mechanics, rather than traders, and the result will prove better both for them and their country.

It is our design to keep a record of the business of the State, so that whatever is creditable to our Commonwealth may appear, and that whatever is injurious may be avoided.

In 1845, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act (chapter 171) to obtain statistical information in relation to certain branches of industry. In accordance with this act, J. G. Palfrey, Esq., Secretary of the Commonwealth, prepared a report of nearly four hundred pages, octavo, from the returns of the assessors of each town, entitled "Statistics of the Condition and Products of certain Branches of Industry in Massachusetts, for the year ending April 1, 1845."

Although this volume speaks well for the industry of our State, it is probably made up of under estimates. Our people are so shy of taxes, that they are very reluctant to acknowledge to the assessors either large means or a large business. The following is a

We had intended to present to the reader, in connection with the above Summary, a complete view of the Trade of the State; but our returns are, as yet, incomplete. We have received estimates of the business done by the traders in one hundred and twenty towns, and the following are the results. We trust that our correspondents will enable us to do full justice to this subject in our next volume. The practical importance of such information will depend, of course, upon its accuracy and completeness.

Number of Traders reported, (individuals) 954
" " Towns in which they do business, ... 120
Estimated population of the same, ... 200,508
" " " largest town represented, ... 5000
" " " smallest, " " 360
Average " to each town, ... 1671
Estimated amount of business, ... $6,283,917·25
Amount to each, if equally divided, ... $6,586·91

Allowing that the business done in each town is equally divided among its traders, the whole amount would stand in relation to the number, 954, according to the following table:—

Of the number of traders, 12 per ct., doing a business from $1,600 per annum to $3,000
.. .. .. 50 .... 3,000 5,000
.. .. .. 20 .... 5,000 8,000
.. .. .. 10 .... 8,000 10,000
.. .. .. 8 ....10,000 22,000

This is rather a comparative view of the business done in the different towns represented, than that of individual traders. Some of the returns give aggregates, embracing frequently the business of ten, twenty, and thirty firms. The actual range of difference of business done by individuals is much greater than that given above, varying from $1,000 to $40,000.

In the following list of traders (which is necessarily incomplete, as some gave numbers without names, while others gave names too hastily written to be read), the kind of business followed by each is not always stated. In country towns, however, traders find it necessary to keep a great variety of merchandise.

MASSACHUSETTS CURRENCY.*

When our ancestors settled Massachusetts, they brought the hard money of their native kingdom. Still such currency was far from being sufficient to meet the wants of the state and communities. Hence, as usual in new colonies, other substances were used to supply the deficiency. Beaver and wampum, or the shell money of Indians, were immediately adopted for such a purpose. Soon the different species of grain, and also cattle, were thus appropriated. To keep a needed supply of one sort of defensive material among the emigrants, who were exposed to sudden attacks from the natives, our civil authorities ordered, in 1635, that farthings be laid aside, and that bullets be a substitute for them, at one for one.

As an important event in their pecuniary relations, the General Court, in 1652, established a mint for silver coin. They had the likeness of a pine tree — long a favorite emblem of perpetuity and truth with them — impressed on one side of such currency. The anecdote of Governor Temple and Charles II., with regard to the tree, is well known. The first pieces were three-pence, six-pence, and twelve-pence, and, ten years afterwards, two-penny ones were emitted. Folke's tables of coins contain fac-similes of penny pieces, and blank six-penny and twelve-penny ones, and also the good Samaritan shilling, which, he says, were made at the same establishment.

For the purpose of retaining such money at home, our authorities had it made with about one-fourth more alloy than similar pieces of England. This was the origin of our New England currency, and the discontinuance of the sterling among our people.

Dry fish was taken as cash in 1654; and boards, also, in 1657.

Our government came to an open rupture, in 1665, with the King's commissioners on the subject of our mint, and other matters of offence to him. They endeavored to conciliate him the next year, and subsequently, with presents of masts, cranberries, samp, and codfish.

* By J. B. Felt, Esq., prepared by him, from his work on the Currency of New England, and first published in Hayward's Gazetteer.

But these advances and various concessions did not prevent his final abrogation of their charter. At the commencement of the usurpation here, in 1686, our mint was closed.

During the year just named, a Bank was established in Massachusetts, on security of real and personal estate, and imperishable merchandise. It probably continued its operations to the revolution of 1689. Our historians seem to have lost sight of its existence.

Though, after the overthrow of the usurpation, a petition to William and Mary, for the revival of our Mint, was negatived, yet a considerable quantity of the pine-tree money was in circulation and so continued to 1774.

To discharge the debts, contracted in the disastrous expedition of 1690 against Quebec, our government began the same year to issue bills of credit. Thus commenced a paper system, with good intentions, but of long standing and of disastrous consequences. The money, so issued, before the arrival of our second charter, was called "Old Charter bills." According to the order of its emission under the former of these two documents, it was denominated old, middle, and new tenor.

The payment of grain for public taxes, ceased to be thus taken at the Province Treasury, 1694, except with a few subsequent restorations of it for such a purpose.

The notes issued and re-issued from our Province Treasury, from 1690 to 1702, were not less than £120,000.

The General Court appear to have authorized William Chalkhill, in 1703, to import £5,000 worth of copper pence.

The table drawn up by Sir Isaac Newton, as the Mint Master of London, for regulating the coin of this and other provinces, was published here in 1704.

After the first year of issuing Province bills, they passed at par till 1712, when they began to decline, because not redeemed as stipulated. Another cause for so adverse a change was the influx of paper currency from the adjacent colonies.

There were three parties in 1714, one for hard money, another for a bank, and the last for Provincial loans.* Though opposed by the General Court, a Bank was commenced in Boston, and emitted £100,000 in scrip, called "Merchants' Notes." These sustained a good credit. The Government granted a loan of £50,000 in paper. They subsequently authorized three more.

William Wood had a royal commission in 1725, to coin "half-pence, pence, and two-pences," for Massachusetts and other British Provinces.

On account of the pressure in pecuniary matters, the people are permitted, in 1735, to pay their tax bills with hemp, flax, and bar iron. The depreciation of the Province bills had occasioned protracted suffering among all branches of the community. Nor did the evil lessen, but continued to increase till the cause was removed.

*When two or more items come within one paragraph, they are of the same year, unless otherwise expressed.

Two banks began their operations in 1740. One was called the Hard Money Bank, and the other the Land and Manufactory Bank. The Governor resisted both of them, but especially the latter. Against this he issued a proclamation. He nullified all the commissions of its stockholders, who held office under him, and would not withdraw from its concerns. A serious rebellion was meditated against him and his abettors, for such a stand.

As a means to correct the evils of injustice, which arose from the payment of debts with notes of the Province, which had fallen much, after the debts were contracted, an equity bill was passed in 1742. An Act of Parliament was published against the two banks last mentioned. Many years elapsed before the affairs of the Land Bank were wound up. Its principal stockholders, made responsible for its debts, suffered greatly in their estates.

The several political parties assumed the name of debtor and creditor parties in 1749. On the proposal of Thomas Hutchinson, our Government decided to redeem their outstanding bills of credit. The means which they appropriated for so commendable a purpose, was the coin paid them by the Crown, for their expenses in the Louisburg expedition.

So great was the popular opposition to such a redemption, a riot act was passed in 1751. Unable to proceed without some paper medium, our legislative authorities resort to the issue of Treasury notes. Though these passed in business transactions, yet they were not a legal tender. This sort of scrip continued to the Revolution. The commissioners for exchanging the Province bills of credit, close their labors. This currency amounted, from 1703 to 1749, in old tenor, to £3,259,747. 9*s*. As additional, were the four loans of £260,000. Though such scrip, at the old tenor rate, was redeemed at $7\frac{1}{2}$ for one of specie, yet it passed at 9 or 10 for one.

Gold is permitted, in 1762, to be a legal tender.

To sustain their attitude against the British, the Congress of our Commonwealth were constrained, in 1775, to emit Treasury notes and Bills of credit. By the latter part of 1779, our state authorities had issued more than £1,600,000 of such paper. Besides this, they were responsible for their proportion of the National notes, which were $400,000,000, old tenor, before the close of 1781. The quota which our Commonwealth received of this amount was $59,800,000.

The Continental bills of the old tenor, nominally passing at 500 for 1 of hard money, in 1781, cease to be a part of our currency. Our first national pecuniary institution, called the Bank of North America, commenced. The votes of our Congressional members were not in its favor.

This Incorporation, having gained much on public favor, had a branch of it located in Boston the next year. Over $30,000,000 of continental scrip had fallen on the hands of various persons in our Commonwealth, which other States ought to have redeemed.

The Massachusetts Bank was chartered in 1784, being the first of such institutions among our population since our independence.

Congress passed a law in 1786, that accounts should be kept in dollars, dimes, cents, and mills. This, of course, disannulled the old method of pounds, shillings, pence, and farthings, which was gradually laid aside. Our national government ordered gold, silver, and copper coins to be made at the United States Mint. The General Court of Massachusetts ordered a similar establishment for a like purpose.

One result as well as gross abuse of our pecuniary embarrassments in consequence of the late war, in 1787, was Shay's rebellion. The buildings of our State Mint were partly erected on Boston Neck, and partly at Dedham. Indian cents and half-cents were issued from them the next year. This was the only use made of them, because the new constitution of the Union confined such a concern to the General Government.

In 1792, a branch of the United States Bank was located in Boston. There also was the Union Bank established, being the second chartered by our State authorities.

Massachusetts, in 1794, liquidated their script of various species. A large amount of bills was kept back by individuals, who expected better conditions, and who so lost the opportunity of getting clear of them.

As many individuals circulated their own notes, in 1799, which passed as currency, General Court forbid such a custom.

After several periods of moneyed embarrassments, one, exceeding these, occurred in 1837. Then, as the banks of New York, and further south, had suspended specie payments, those of Massachusetts were forced to do the same. Our State Banks resumed their obligation to pay hard money in 1839. During this suspension, it was usual to give notes of hand, payable "in current bills." For the last six years our currency has been in a good condition.

That we may have a "bird's-eye view" of our State Banks, at different periods, the subsequent items are presented. The numerals immediately succeeding the years, denote the number of such institutions:—1803, 7; 1813, 16; 1823, 34; 1833, 102; 1838, 124; 1845, 104. The capital of the last number of banks is $30,970,000.

The preceding sketch demonstrates what has been the experience of all civilized nations, that the regulation of currency is full of doubts and difficulties, and is very far from having attained to a perfect standard.

Its territory, including islands, contains 5,429 acres. As calculated at the Marine Hall, its latitude is 42° 31′ 18″ 53-100ths north; longitude, 70° 53′ 53″ 3-100th west. *

In Mr. Higginson's letter, dated July 24, 1629, he says: "There are with us in all, ould and new planters 300, whereof 200 are settled at Naimkecke (Salem), and the rest plant themselves at Massachusetts Bay, being to build a towne there called Charleston or Charlestowne. We that are settled at Salem, make what haste we can to build, so that, within a short tyme, we shall have a fayre towne."

Roxbury was incorporated as a town, September 28, 1630, and as a city March 12, 1846. It was named from its abundance of rocks.

The territory of this city comprises an area of 10,686 square acres, and is 7 3-4 miles in length (from Boston to Dedham) and 2½ miles in breadth (from Dorchester to Brookline), bounded north-westerly by Brookline and Newton, south-westerly by Dedham, south-easterly by Dorchester, and easterly by Boston, and is joined to the latter city by a neck of land; over which are broad and pleasant avenues. Formerly this neck (1 mile 117 feet in length) was the only passage to Boston, except by water, and was so low that the tides swept across it.*

The surface of Roxbury is much diversified by hills and valleys. The soil in most of the town is fertile, and under a high state of cultivation. At the easterly part of the town, the conglomerate rock, or pudding stone as it is sometimes called, abounds, affording to the geologist and theorist an excellent theme for speculation. Large quantities of these rocks have been removed, and converted to building and other purposes, in this and the adjoining city. Much of the land known as Mount Prospect, Mount Pleasant, Tommy's Rock, Parker's Hill, and the Fort or Highlands, was formerly nearly covered with these rocks, rendering it of little value for cultivation or grazing; but the proximity of these sections to Boston and the principal business of Roxbury, together with the commanding and beautiful prospects presented from these elevations, has caused a constant and increasing demand for building lots, and consequently enhanced their value. Streets have been laid out over these hills, affording easy and safe access to any part of them.

Population.

According to the United States census, the population of Roxbury, at different periods, has been as follows:

1790	1800	1810	1820	1830	1840	1845
2,226	2,765	3,669	4,135	5,247	9,089	13,929
First 10 yrs. increase 24 per ct..		33 per cent.	13 per cent.	27 per cent.	92 per cent.	53 per cent.

The valuation of estates from 1836 to 1846 has increased from $5,582,400 to $12,531,100.

Manufactories.

This town has become quite a manufacturing place. The manufactures consist principally of cordage, railroad iron, castings, leather, India rubber goods, carpeting, starch, fringes and lining, patent leather, lead, chemicals, turpentine, &c., &c. Steam power is employed by twenty-five different establishments, amounting to 454 horse power.

In the western part of the town is an extensive level, called Jamaica Plains. This is a pleasant spot, ornamented with elegant country seats and well-cultivated gardens. The pond in this plain is the source whence the Boston aqueduct is supplied. It is about four miles from Boston, and there are four main logs from the pond, to and through the principal streets; these logs and the branches connected with them amount to about 40 miles in length.†

Gen. Joseph Warren, and Gen. Wm. Heath, were born in Roxbury; the former in 1740, and the latter in 1737. Gen. Heath died Jan. 24, 1814.

*Mr. George Adams, publisher of the new Boston Directory, has prepared an Almanac and Business Directory for Roxbury, and also one for Cambridge, from which we make some extracts. We hope and trust that he will be encouraged to continue his labors.

Cambridge was incorporated as a town by the name of "Newtown," in 1630, and as a city, March 17, 1846. West Cambridge, Lexington, and Brighton, were formerly a part of this town. Old Cambridge is the seat of Harvard College, the oldest institution of the kind in the United States. "The college buildings stand on an enclosed plain of fourteen acres, around which, except in front, forest trees are planted. These buildings are large and commodious, which have been erected at different periods, as the accommodations of the officers and students required. Most of them are of brick; the most modern are of granite; they bear the names of the various patrons of the institution."*

Massachusetts Hall, the most ancient of the present building, was built in 1720. Harvard Hall was built in 1765. The University Hall was erected in 1814. Its dimensions are 140 by 50 feet, and is 42 feet in height. It is built of Chelsford granite. Holworthy Hall was erected in 1812, Hollis Hall in 1764, and Stoughton Hall in 1804.

Gore Hall. — This edifice, intended for the library, and named in honor of the liberal benefactor of the College, the late Gov. Gore, was commenced in 1837, and finished 1842. It cost $73,512.28. "This building presents a very pure specimen of the Gothic style of the fourteenth century in its form and proportions, while the hard sienite, or Quincy granite, of which it is constructed, made it necessary to omit the elaborate ornaments with which this style is usually wrought. In its plan, the building forms a Latin cross; the length of the body being 140 feet, and that of the transepts 81½ feet. The principal fronts are south and north; with octagonal towers rising from the ground, on each side of the principal entrances, to the height of 83 feet. Gore Hall may be considered as the principal ornament of the College Square." — Pres. Quincy's Harv. University.

In 1639, says Winthrop's Journal, "a printing-house was begun at Cambridge, by one Daye, at the charge of Mr. Glover, who died on sea hitherward. The first thing printed was the Freeman's Oath; the next was an almanack made for New England, by Mr. Wm. Peirce, mariner; the next was the Psalms newly turned into metre."

The cemetery of Mount Auburn, one of the most interesting spots in our country, is situated in Cambridge and Watertown, about four miles from the city of Boston. It includes upwards of 100 acres of land, extending from the main road nearly to the banks of Charles river. The beauty and hallowed associations of this sacred retreat may be seen and felt by those who visit the place; but language is altogether inadequate to a just description of it.

STATISTICS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

POPULATION OF MASSACHUSETTS.

We should be glad to give an extended article on the subject of the population of this Commonwealth, in connection with its history; but the limits of the present volume preclude it. The subject is an important one, and as yet but little understood. The various tables of population, whether furnished by government or individuals, are important only as they are used to illustrate the true principles of legislation, or the necessary observance of the natural laws of man. The population of a state or a country is affected by a great variety of causes, and indicates the success or failure of its institutions, and the habits of its people. An enumeration of these causes should make a part of every census; and the relation of cause and effect should be traced from the statistics collected, and the results given. In this way would a census be one of the most useful and interesting works which the government of a state could give to its people. The Census of Boston, ordered by the City Government, in 1845, and prepared by Lemuel Shattuck, Esq., is, perhaps, the most complete of any that has been published in this country; and yet, as the author justly remarks in his conclusion, "several of the subjects are very imperfectly illustrated, and others are not noticed at all, which might with propriety have been included in a work of this kind." The author, however, is not responsible for these omissions.

The following extracts are taken from a work just published, entitled "A Statistical View of the Population of Massachusetts from 1765 to 1840," by Jesse Chickering, M.D., of Boston. The object of the work is to exhibit the increase of the population of Massachusetts, and the changes which have taken place in the number and proportions of the inhabitants in the several parts of the Commonwealth, during the period of 75 years, from 1765 to 1840. In executing this work, the author has evinced great ability, and bestowed an amount of labor which is extraordinary. It is a work only of 160 pages 8vo; but within this compass he gives above 100 tables, calculated to illustrate the subject of which he treats. To the statesman and historian, this work will prove to be of great value; and we hope to see an edition of it published by the Commonwealth, to be given to the towns of the State, and to all the public libraries of the country.

"By assuming 244,149 as the approximate population of Massachusetts in 1765, the increase in twenty-five years, to 1790, was 134,638, or 55·14 per cent.: averaging 1·7723 per cent. per annum; which is greater than the increase has been in any equal period since.

The increase of Boston from 1765 to 1790 was only 2,800, or 18·0393 per cent., while that of the rest of the State was 131,838 or 57·6646 per cent., showing a much greater increase of the country towns than of the capital. This is partly to be ascribed to the effects of the Revolutionary War, which occured in the course of these twenty-five years, and in consequence of which for a time most of the citizens fled into the country. Another cause was, the people were occupied very much in spreading over the western parts of the State, as settlers in the then wilderness, and little conversant with commerce and manufactures as now understood, which of late have been the most important means of building up Boston.

TABLE,

Exhibiting the Population of Massachusetts, of Boston, and of the Country Towns, or of the State, exclusive of Boston, according to the six United States Censuses, together with its increase in each decennial Period, and in each year, from 1790 to 1840.*

"It will be seen that the increase of the whole population for the first 10 years was nearly equal to that in the 2d period of two months' less duration, but greater than that in the third, which alone embraced ten years and two months. In the last two periods, there was decidedly a larger increase than in either of the first three periods. The increase of manufactures from 1820 to 1840, greatly checked the emigration to other States.

* In our next volume we design to give complete tables of the population of the towns of Massachusetts, from 1765 to 1846, with historical notes.

"The increase of Boston and other parts of the State, from 1810 to 1820, was decidedly less than during any other period; and during the last two periods it was decidedly greater than during the first two periods.

"By adopting 244,149 as the population of Massachusetts in 1765, we find that the increase in the twenty-five years was 134,638, from which we deduce the average increase of 9·1811 per cent. in five years; of 19·2054 per cent. in ten years; and 42·0992 per cent. in twenty years. In thirty years the increase at the same rate would be 169,415, or 69·3900 per cent. At the average rate of 9·1811 per cent. increase in five years, the number would be 266,565 in 1770; 291,039 in 1775; 317,760 in 1780; 346,934 in 1785."

"The average increase of Massachusetts, in each period of ten years, from 1765 to 1790, was 19·2054 per cent.; and from 1790 to 1840, 14·2606 per cent.

"The average increase of Massachusetts, in each period of twenty years, from 1765 to 1790, was 42·0992 per cent.; and from 1790 to 1840, 30·5551 per cent.

"The average increase of Boston, in each period of ten years, from 1790 to 1840, was 38·506 per cent.; and of the rest of the State, only 12·3173 per cent.

"The increase of Massachusetts, from 1765 to 1840, was 493,551, or 202·1515 per cent.; of Boston, 77,863, or 501·6945 per cent.; and of the rest of the State, 415,688, or 181·8177 per cent.

"The average increase of Massachusetts, from 1765 to 1840, in each twenty-five years, was 44·5688 per cent.; in each twenty years, 34·2950 per cent.; in each ten years, 15·8857 per cent.; in each five years, 7·6503 per cent.; and in each year, 1·4853 per cent. This last is ·1433 per cent. per annum greater than 1·3420 per cent., the rate from 1790 to 1840.

"It will appear from these statements, that the average increase of the population of Massachusetts was greater from 1765 to 1790 than it has been since. Had the rate continued the same, the number would have been 911,749 in 1840. Also, the increase of Boston was, on an average, much less during the first twenty-five years than that of the other parts of the State, and much greater during the last two periods of twenty-five years each, showing a tendency to centralization in Boston."

POPULATION OF MARBLEHEAD.

As there are some interesting facts in relation to the population of Marblehead, we give the numbers from 1765 to 1840: —

1765	1790	1800	1810	1820	1830	1840

Marblehead,* previous to the revolutionary war, ranked, both in population and valuation, the second town in Massachusetts. It is believed that no place in the Commonwealth, or in the country, suffered more severely than this in consequence of the war of 1775, and also of 1812. In the former, in addition to the great number of her hardy, patriotic citizens who perilled their lives and liberty in letters of marque, &c., a whole regiment of infantry, composed chiefly of her sons, and commanded by her own Col. Glover, joined the army at Cambridge in 1775, and most of them surrendered their lives a sacrifice in the service of their country. At the termination of the last war with England, it is a memorable fact that five hundred of her daring sons were contained in the single prison of Dartmoor, where the greater part of them had been incarcerated for two years or more, while their families were left destitute at home.

* Communicated by the Rev. Samuel Dana, of Marblehead.

The Fisheries, which have been the principal business of this town, ever since its settlement, commenced in 1629, constitute a hazardous employment, and by no means lucrative, though beneficial to the nation. By as correct an account as could be taken, as published in the Essex Gazette of Jan. 2, 1770, it appears that from Jan. 1768 to Jan. 1770, the town lost 23 sail of vessels, with all the men belonging to them, besides a considerable number who were washed overboard from vessels that returned, leaving 70 widows and 155 children; and that the loss of interest was computed to be £14,124. 8*s.* 5*d.* lawful money.

During the present century, at the commencement of which more than 100 Banking vessels were owned here, 3 vessels with their crews have been lost, on an average, every two years. During the very last year, in the single memorable gale of Sept. 19, eleven vessels were totally wrecked on the Bank of Newfoundland, and the crews of 9 of them perished! By this terrible disaster, 65 lives and 43 heads of families were lost, making 43 widows and 150 fatherless children, not more than 12 years old. For the relief of these sufferers, a subscription of $3,600 was raised, unsolicited, by the benevolent in Boston, and of about $2,000 in Salem, besides smaller sums in various other places.

PLYMOUTH.

It may be interesting to some of our readers, to know how the descendants of the Pilgrims in Plymouth are employed. We find the inhabitants of this ancient town thus classified in Berry's Directory for 1846:—

Railroads in Massachusetts.

In 1818 there was not a single mile of railway in New England, excepting a wooden track in the town of Quincy, Massachusetts, used for the transportation of stone from the quarries. Now, above 800 miles of railroads have their termination in Boston. It was estimated by the Railroad Journal, in October, 1846, "that some $37,000,000 are invested in the railroads of Massachusetts. This includes the capital invested in roads in States adjoining Massachusetts by Massachusetts men."

It is not yet 17 years since the first locomotive engine was constructed in Europe, which could haul 20 tons on a level road, at the rate of 10 miles an hour. America now has engines of her own make, which can haul, with comparative ease, 1,200 tons, at the same velocity.*

Land belonging to Massachusetts in Maine.

In the year 1842, Mr. Coffin, land agent, went into a close calculation, to ascertain, as near as it was practicable, the number of acres of the land in the State of Maine which then belonged to the share of this Commonwealth. After a full examination of the subject, and triangulating the several surveys which had been made, he estimated the whole quantity belonging to Massachusetts on the 31st December, 1842, to be about (in round numbers) 2,900,000 acres.

	Acres.
23 Townships,	530,980
Surveyed and held in common and undivided with the State of Maine, 58¾ townships, containing 1,411,524 acres. One half of ditto is	705,762
The residue of the land held in common and undivided, and not yet surveyed, lies in one body, and nearly in the form of an oblong square, and is intersected by two large rivers, viz., the Allagash and Walloostook rivers, and is estimated to contain about 2,366,554 acres. One half of which, Massachusetts share, is	1,183,272
Total number of acres as estimated,	2,420,014

The territory which is not yet surveyed into townships is said to contain a large quantity of valuable pine, and other kinds of valuable timber. The value of the lands ranges from about thirty cents to one dollar and fifty cents an acre, according to the value of the growth standing thereon, and facility of removing it to market.

Those townships which have been surveyed, have also been thoroughly explored by suitable persons employed for that purpose; and a price has been fixed upon each township, in accordance with the report made by the surveyors and explorers.

TREES AND SHRUBS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

The following extracts are taken from the Report of George B. Emerson, Esq., of Boston, published agreeably to an Order of the Legislature, by the Commissioners on the Zoological and Botanical survey of the State.*

This is certainly one of the most valuable and interesting works ever authorized to be published by the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. The author appears not only to understand his subject thoroughly, but is moved by that gentle enthusiasm in its elucidation which ever characterises sound judgment and refined taste.

"The object of the present report is to describe the trees and shrubs of the forest of Massachusetts, to set forth their importance, their general and particular relations, uses and properties, and the modes by which they may be preserved, propagated, and improved."

"No element of beauty is so completely manageable as trees; and our resources in that respect are surprisingly great. Situated in the middle of the temperate zone, we have, in Massachusetts, all the best of deciduous trees, the oaks, elms, beeches, ashes, hickories, walnuts, cherries, maples, the chestnut, linden, and button-wood, of the temperate regions; together with the finest of the evergreens, the pines, firs, spruces, cedars and hemlock, and the delicate birches, of a more northern climate. Each one of these trees has its own peculiar and distinctly marked character, recognizable at a distance, and producing an effect which needs not to be mistaken for that of any other. Each has its own cycle of change, its own time of flowering and of perfecting its fruit, and of opening and maturing, changing and casting its foliage. Each has its own shape and its own color, distinguishing it from every other tree, even of the species most nearly allied. Hence the endless variety of forest scenery. Here are more than fifty elements shading off and blending into each other in imperceptible gradations, according as you recede from the coast to the interior, as you go north or south, or as you rise from the plain into the mountains."

"In the narrow breadth of Massachusetts, the species of native timber trees are more numerous than are found in any kingdom of Europe. We have nine large oak trees, four hickories, five birches, three large maples, three ashes, three pines, two walnuts, two elms, two spruces, two cedars, besides the beech, the chestnut, the hornbeam, the leverwood, the tupelo, the hoop ash or nettle tree, the tulip tree, the plane, the bass, the locust, the hemlock, the fir, the hacmatack, the cherry, the holly, several poplars, many willows, and a large number of smaller trees."

The consumption of wood for manufacturing purposes and for fuel is so great, that Mr. Emerson thinks it would be "a prudent foresight" to plant, "in season, the kinds of trees necessary for these various demands, for fuel and all the branches of manufacture."

For 560 miles of railroad, Mr. Emerson estimates the amount of pine wood consumed, 53,710 cords, at an expense of $178,990.

According to the latest returns, the woodlands of Massachusetts cover 729,792 acres. There are, besides, 955,000 acres of unimproved lands, and 360,000 reported as unimprovable. In all, there are 2,044,792 acres not occupied by buildings or cultivation, out of the 4,491,812 acres which are estimated to constitute the whole territory. Probably the whole of the unimproved and those called unimprovable lands, might be turned into forest; as it is very questionable whether any land, except the ocean beach, should be considered unimprovable. Mr. Emerson gives an interesting account of successful experiments tried in Europe, and points out the proper course to be pursued.

We commend the work to all owners and cultivators of land, and regret that we have not more space to give further extracts. The following are given as the prices of wood in the different counties of Massachusetts: — In Berkshire County, $2.00 per cord; in Franklin, Hampden, and Hampshire Counties, $3.00; in Barnstable, Bristol, Essex, Middlesex, Norfolk, Plymouth, and Worcester Counties, $4.00; in Nantucket and Dukes Counties, $5.00; and in Suffolk County, $6.00. "Taking the inhabitants of the several counties, according to the census of 1840, I obtain the average price of $4.03 per cord, for the whole consumption by families. The quantities necessary for a family's use are stated by my correspondents at all numbers, from 4 to 30 cords or more. The numbers given me by the 15 persons most to be relied on, are, 4, 6, 6, 8, 9, 10, 10, 11, 15, 16, 17, 17, 20, 20, 30. The average of these is 13 and nearly 3 tenths."

Of the 15 convicts in confinement during life, one has been received the past year, viz. for rape, sentence death, punishment commuted to imprisonment for life.

It gives me great pleasure (says the warden) to be again able to report, that the affairs of the prison have been well and prosperous during the past year. A state of unprecedented health has prevailed. There has been but one death during the year, and no one has been released from prison on account of ill health since I have been connected with it. Order, industry, kind feelings, and consequently contentment, and a good degree of happiness, have constantly existed among us. A desire of self-improvement among the convicts has been excited, and prevailed in a remarkable degree; so that the time not assigned to labor has been devoted very generally to reading, writing, cyphering, and other studies culculated to inform the mind, soften the affections, and improve the character.

A society has been formed, during the past year, among the convicts, called "The Massachusetts State Prison Society for Moral Improvement and Mutual Aid;" and a majority of the convicts have become members of this Society, and have pledged themselves to live up to the requirements of the constitution and by-laws of this society.

By balance, being deficit of income,	504.98
	$32,692.33

From the above deficit, $305.97 should be deducted, as the expense of a new Bathing-house, and $100 as money paid for the increase of the Library, leaving the true deficit of income only $99.01.

From the Report of Mr. Enoch Hunt, the Agent for Discharged Convicts, to the Governor and Council, dated December 24, 1846.

"There have been 90 convicts discharged from the prison the past year, by expiration of sentence.

"Your agent has seen and conversed with nearly all of them, obtained employment for 17, and assisted 5 to go to their homes. Those who have been discharged by pardon from the executive, or by order of Court, he has had no opportunity of seeing. Your agent has procured labor for some, who have conducted well, and been grateful for his assistance and advice. In these cases, his efforts seem to have been quite beneficial to the individuals. The fact that they had a friend who could interest himself in their behalf, and also interest others for them, has stimulated and encouraged them to industry and honesty. But there have been instances of quite an opposite character."

The Report here gives the particulars of a few unsuccessful cases which our limits do not permit us to copy.

The agent has only to persevere, and we doubt not his labors will be crowned with success. His recommendation to have but one agent, it seems to us, is an important one. We hope that his suggestion will be adopted.

The figures are stated in the tables as they are given in the 'Returns;' the debtors being included, in some instances, in the 'whole number,' and in others, omitted."
